WARSHIP BRINGS BODY OF HAGGERTY

"Dan" Haggerty was brought home today by the government for which he died.

At 10 o'clock the United States armored cruiser Montana arrived at Charlestown Navy Yard, bearing the bodies of the three New England youths who fell at Vera Cruz—Daniel Aloysius Haggerty of Cambridge, corporal of marines; Edward Rufus Percy of Concord, N. H., marine, and Walter L. Watson of Eastham, ordinary seaman.

ATTACK CHARACTER OF BECKER ACCUSER

NEW YORK, May 13.—"Bald" Jack Rose was subjected to a grilling cross-examination today in the second trial of former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker for the murder of Herman Rosenthal. Attorneys for Becker attempted to tear down the fabric of Rose's story of yesterday.

Rose's grilling by Attorney Manton began with an attempt to prove him a disreputable character. He tried to show that Rose had been engaged in white slavery, that he was a petty thief and that he had tried to blackmail Tom Sharkey for $1,500.

In reply to questions, Rose said he was born in Russia and was brought to this country when three years old. He denied that he had accepted the earnings of women of the streets, and was emphatic in his declarations that he had never acted as a "steerer" for an opium "joint" formerly operated by Bridgie Webber in Chinatown. Rose craftily professed ignorance of a number of terms common among criminals.

Manton then switched to Chicago.

"Weren't you driven out of Chicago by Mike White?" the lawyer asked.

"No," replied Rose.

Rose also denied that he lived in a disorderly resort in Chicago, saying that his place of residence there was the Stratford Hotel.

Manton mentioned a number of women by name, but Rose denied knowing any of them.

DENIES HE STOLE RING.

The witness denied that he had stolen a diamond ring from White, who he said had been an agent for player pianos.

Rose said he first met Rosenthal twenty years ago and later went into the gambling business with him. Rose was elected president of the Hesper Club, but denied the imputation that Rosenthal had him ousted for holding up women of the street.

Rose denied that he had ever "hired any gunmen for Rosenthal," saying he did not know Rosenthal ever made use of any gangsters for this sinister purpose.

Some of the details of Rose's testimony were not identical with those of his story told at the first trial and Attorney Manton proceeded to dwell on these at length. One of these concerned the list of places where Rose and Becker were in the habit of meeting.

ROSE CALM AS USUAL.

The contention of the defence which Becker's lawyers will try to show to the jury is that Sam Schepps, Harry Vallon and "Bridgie" Webber, the quartet of gamblers, plotted Rosenthal's death themselves, then concocted the story they told on the witness stand at the first trial of Becker.

Rose looked as natty and as ratlike as usual when he entered the courtroom today. His hairless head and outpointing ears gave him an eccentric appearance as he took the witness chair to face his ordeal.

If Rose was worried he did not show it in his face or manner. He glanced curiously into the spectators' gallery, where there were a number of fashionably dressed society women. "Becker trial" parties are becoming popular.

Among the women who have been attending the trial are Mrs. Ines Milholland Boissevain, Mrs. Samuel Seabury, wife of the presiding justice, and Mrs. Belmont Tiany. Among the male spectators were Ogden Mills and Phoenix Ingraham, a favorite cotillon leader in society.

BECKER PLEASED.

Becker appeared pleased with the outcome of the first part of Rose's story. He looked cheerful when he entered court and smiled at his wife, who smiled back at him.

Rose, in the calmest tones, told an intensely dramatic story of the plot which sent Rosenthal to his death. The courtroom was filled with spectators who listened in absolute silence.

Asserting that Becker, Rosenthal and he were joint partners in Rosenthal's gambling house, Rose emphasized the gambler's refusal to stand for a raid under circumstances, "even to save

MELLEN UNDER FIRE IN SECRET MIDNIGHT PROBE BY GOV. FOLK

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A secret midnight examination of former President Charles S. Mellen by Solicitor Folk of the Interstate Commerce Commission and a break between the commission and Attorney-General McReynolds were the sensational features today in the commission's investigation of the Hilburd-New Haven-Boston & Maine affairs.

The break between the law department and the Interstate Board came after a conference today between McReynolds, Folk, Commissioner Richard and Senators Norris and Kern. It ended in a disagreement following which Governor Folk and Mr. McChord were asked to withdraw from the conference. Governor Folk will no longer accept suggestions from the Attorney-General, it is said, and has announced that he positively will place Charles S. Mellen on the stand in the New Haven inquiry tomorrow morning.

Mr. Mellen was examined privately by Governor Folk at a secret conference between the two at the Shoreham Hotel lasting from midnight until nearly daylight today.

Governor Folk declined to announce the result of the examination.

News of the secret hearing given to Mr. Mellen caused intense surprise. Attorney-General McReynolds said to have objected to Mellen and his associates being called as witnesses by the Interstate Commerce Commission lest they set up a claim of having received an "immunity bath" in case criminal proceedings are brought.

AFTER THE TRUTH.

"It is not a question of immunity but of whether the truth shall be suppressed," declared Mr. Folk in a statement concerning the attitude of Attorney-General McReynolds.

"Mellen as a witness telling the truth would be a thousand times more valuable to the public than Mellen could possibly be as a defendant.

"The situation is now as it has been from the beginning. I shall insist that all witnesses having knowledge of the matters under investigation be placed on the stand and they will be questioned without limitation as to the questions to be asked. The whole truth will be brought out if it is possible to do so, no matter whom it hits.

"The great question before the American people today is to secure honesty in the management of the railroad systems of the country.

"The revelations already brought to light in this investigation and the further disclosures that Mr. Mellen and other witnesses can make should be of immense value and result in legislation that will cause it to be just as grave a crime to plunder the public through a corporation as it is now to personally rob an individual."

M'REYNOLDS THROUGH.

Attorney-General McReynolds today divested himself of any responsibility for immunity which may be obtained by Mellen, Rockefeller, Ellard and others in a letter to the commission, in which he places entire responsibility the hands of the present investigators.

"Of course I have no desire to interfere with or to urge any objection to the course you may deliberately decide upon," says the Attorney-General in his letter, but it seems my duty to the government again to suggest that you carefully consider along with other factors the effects which an examination at this time may have."

In a statement the Attorney-General says:

"My letter to the commission expresses fully and clearly the position in reference to the examination of the witnesses in question which I have always maintained. Further, the whole matter is within the control of the commission under a resolution of the Senate, and I am entirely content that it should determine and pursue whatever course it thinks it would best serve the public interest."

The attorney-general's decision was reached, following a conference with Senator Kern, Senator Norris, Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord and Chief Counsel Folk of the commission.

IMMUNITY WARNING.

Attorney-General McReynolds' letter to the Interstate Commerce Commission, dated May 12, follows:

Gentlemen:

On April 9 I wrote you as follows:

I am advised that you have issued subpoenaes for Messrs. Charles S. Mellen, E. D. Robbins, and perhaps others at some time connected with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

I assume you have in mind the possibility of examining them concerning the affairs of that railroad.

In view of these facts it seems not inappropriate to suggest that you consider very carefully the effect of such an examination upon any criminal prosecution, which the government may hereafter desire to institute.

Two or three days ago, I noticed in the public press that you summoned Messrs. Charles S. Mellen, William Rockefeller, George McCullough Miller, Charles Rooker, Edwin Milner, Lewis Cass Ledyard, George F. Baker and Edward Bobbins to testify before you concerning matters relating to the affairs of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company.

Being temporarily out of the city I asked my assistant to call your attention to the possible unfortunate effects of an examination of these witnesses at this time. Returning to my office this morning I was informed by them that they acted upon my instructions and advised with you fully upon the subject.

Of course I have no desire to interfere with or to urge any objection to the course you may deliberately decide upon; but it seems my duty to the government against to suggest that you carefully consider along with other factors the effect that an examination at this time of the persons named above may have.

Faithfully yours,

J. C. McREYNOLDS,
Attorney-General.

MERGER COST HIS FAMILY $1,250,000, MR. LAWRENCE STATES

WASHINGTON, May 13.—William B. Lawrence of Boston, testifying at the continued inquiry by the Interstate Commerce Commission into the financial affairs of the New Haven road, declared his family had lost fully $1,250,000 in value of the Boston & Maine stock it held as a result of the New Haven's absorption of the line.

The witness said much of the high grade traffic of the road had been diverted to the New Haven and the Boston & Albany. From 1901 to 1906 Mr. Lawrence added, the Boston & Maine had had a constant increase in freight and passenger traffic, but that since that period it had fallen off.

Mr. Lawrence told of a meeting at which he said Lewis Case Ledyard, of New York, one of the board, stated that the New Haven would give its stock, share for share, for Boston & Maine stock.

"Mr Ledyard stated," said Lawrence, "that J. Pierpont Morgan and others had decided there ought to be a change in the railroad situation. The general scheme was to bring about a consolidation of railroads until there were only five and ultimately with the express companies."

Mr. Ledyard, who was present this afternoon, waiting to testify, arose and declared that some of the statements made by Mr. Lawrence were incorrect and he wanted to answer them. He was told he could do so a little later.

Mr. Ledyard, who was then called, declared: "The testimony just given as to the scheme for limiting or consolidating railroads and Mr. Morgan's connection with anything of the kind is false."

Mr. Lawrence, jumping up, asked: "Is it not true that William K. Vanderbilt had obtained a block of 5,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock at a special price on condition that it would not go to the New York Central Railroad?"

"I know nothing of that," answered Mr. Ledyard.

"Not a Dollar to Influence New Haven Legislation"

Former Vice-President Byrnes—"Tim" Byrnes—testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission:

I want to say that while I was in charge of the company's business in Massachusetts not a dollar was paid through me to influence legislation improperly. I had instructions from Mr. Mellen verbally and in writing not to spend a cent this way, and, so help me God, I never did.

BUT—

He paid $1,000 at Mr. Mellen's direction to Admiral Bowles of the Fore River Ship Company to be paid to Lawyer De Knight to lobby against the Panama Canal bill at Washington.

He paid from $12,000 to $15,000 to Messrs. Innes and Turtle for "work of a general character among civic bodies" in Massachusetts.

He paid large sums to Lawyer H. B. Knowles when the latter was on a Massachusetts legislative committee dealing with the New Haven's trolley extensions, but not, of course, to influence any such legislation.

He paid W. S. McNary, whom he described as "a publicist, a former member of Congress, a transportation expert, a furniture store clerk, and a public-spirited man," $1,500 for some "expert opinions."

He paid $50,000 to two other Boston lawyers, but for advice as how to "steer clear or criticism" and not for lobby services.

He financed the "Hilltown Association" of Massachusetts, but of course with no idea of thereby creating any influence which might affect legislation.

He paid a Harvard law professor—Bruce Wyman—$10,000 a year, and the professor's father $50 a day, and the professor's brother $25 a day, but only to "popularize" the New Haven and in no idea of influencing legislation on the strength of the road's manufactured popularity.

He spent large sums for newspaper favor, with special leaning to "Practical Politics" and "Truth" in that line.

He spent $381 for 15,000 "prayers"—prayers from "the hills whence cometh our strength"—or at the rate of two and a half cents a prayer, which was the cheapest thing the New Haven bought, and probably because the insiders were not strong on that line of article to sell. "Prayers" for them but none for stockholders or travelers on the road!

And $400,000 went to the Boston Herald!

Aunt Sally's Advice To Beauty Seekers

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my complexion, but can't lose them. What do you suppose I can use sooner to whiten. The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in any case of freckles or other unnatural blemish."

Aunt S. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles? Let him manage my face, which is in a befuddled condition, creasing and lines and lower the throat. Is there nothing the face to an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is reasonably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like cold cream, washing it off morning. This will cause the surface skin to peel off, revealing the fair, velvety, healthy-hued skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

BYRNES WILL RESUME LAW BUSINESS HERE

Timothy E. Byrnes, former vice-president of the New Haven Railroad, who has been testifying before the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, plans to return to his farm at Cohasset for a Summer's rest, after which he probably will be associated with a Boston law office.

The Boston News Bureau obtained the following statement from Mr. Byrnes in Washington:

"I returned from California but ten days ago and will rest for the Summer months at my farm at Cohasset.

"It now appears likely that I shall form a connection with a law firm in Boston and again resume active practice.

"I like Boston and should be most pleased to enter into business again in that city. I have also had two railroad offers, one from the East and the other from a Western line.

"I tried to make it plain to the commission when I was on the witness stand in response to which I considered unwarranted insinuations regarding illegal expenditures of the New Haven in Massachusetts when I was there that I valued my character just as much as the examiners did theirs."

Wage Assignment Bill is Defeated

The bill was urged as a blow at the loan sharks.

Representative Tolman of Gloucester, opposing the bill, said: "You do not realize what the assignment of wages means to poor folks," he declared. "It is an asset we should not take away from the masses."

HEARST 'OASIS' MAKES BIG HIT WITH SHRINERS

ATLANTA, Ga., May 13. — The "oasis" opened by the Hearst papers is proving the real hit of the Shriners' convention. Shriners, weary and with blistered feet from their walks over torrid sands, availed themselves in large numbers of the opportunity to become refreshed in the English mansion, which has been leased by the Hearst papers and fixed up as a real "oasis."

They came by ones and by twos, by family parties and by whole detachments from Boston, Chicago, New York, Buffalo, San Francisco, Los Angeles and almost every other city of note in the United States.

William Randolph Hearst, whose idea the "oasis" was and at whose direction the handsome English residence was transformed into an open house for the particular benefit of the Shriners during the week, was at the "oasis" and received many enthusiastic Shriners, who voted that the entertainment and bubbling founts for their refreshment, were quite the most delightful provision that ever had been made at any session of the imperial council.

MANY ARE ENTERTAINED.

"We'll be back again," shouted the members of Chicago's Medinah Band of oriental players as they marched out the portals.

A large number of the Mecca Temple Shriners of New York also were Mr. Hearst's guests.

Mrs. Hearst was the honor guest at a luncheon given today by Mrs. Phillip S. McDuffie.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearst were entertained at a supper party by Colonel Willis Hagon. Other affairs planned for Mr. and Mrs. Hearst are a dinner party with Governor and Mrs. Slaton tonight. Colonel and Mrs. Walter P. Andrews will give them a dinner tomorrow evening at the Piedmont Driving Club. Governor and Mrs. Slaton will entertain Friday evening and Colonel John Temple Graves will give a dinner party at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday night.

BAY STATERS MAKE HIT.

In the great parade the Shriners of Massachusetts, New York, Illinois and California made distinct hits.

Mecca of New York City was headed by a physician in flowing robes. He was followed by four women in the uniform of trained nurses, then came the great band of Mecca, all in blue coats and white trousers and headed by a six-foot drum major.

Mohammed Temple of Peoria, Ill., also paraded with an Oriental band which made a hit.

Then came the great California battalion of four temples combined. Here marched Islam of San Francisco, Ames of Oakland, across the bay, Al Malaikah of Los Angeles, and Al Bahr of San Diego. The patrols were splendid in their gowns of green and gold and crimson.

FOUR BANDS COMBINE.

The band was a sensation, the musicians of the four temples were combined into one great band of 120 pieces, and the music it made was equalled only by the gorgeous sunburst of the varied uniforms.

Far down the street its course could be traced by the storm of yells which greeted it. This is the famous "millionaire band" of the Pacific Coast. There were over a hundred Californians in line. Californians have taken charge of one of the largest hotels here and are fighting for the 1915 convention for San Francisco. They say they will defeat Seattle.

MME. NORDICA MADE HER WILL ABOARD WRECK

NEW YORK, May 13.—Ex-Governor Alva Adams of Colorado, who has arrived from an eight months' trip to Australia, New Zealand and the East Indies as United States commissioner to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, told today of the accident to the Royal Dutch Mail liner Tasman, which hastened the death of Mme. Nordica at Batavia, Java. He said:

said:

"We were fellow passengers on the Tasman and I know Mme. Nordica was ill when the steamship ran ashore in the Gulf of Papua on the night of December 27. In her conversations with my wife and myself before the accident, the singer appeared to be rather despondent as to her condition, and on January 1 she sent for me to make her will.

"I can only speak in the highest terms of the Dutch officers and seamen. Their behavior was perfect and all hands worked like trojans to lighten the ship during the four days we remained on the rocks.

"It was very fortunate that we got off when we did, because next day along came a tornado which would have meant disaster if the Tasman had still been anchored on the rocks."

Women's and Misses' Suits
For $14,000

Original prices were $18.50 to $250

Just one great reason why we are taking more than seven hundred excellent suits out of our regular stocks and slicing from five to a hundred dollars each off their already fair prices. That reason—TOO MANY SUITS.

It is much better, in our opinion, to give you your choice of these suits now, this minute, as soon as we make up our minds that we have too many, than it would be to do as many stores would do and dribble them out through June, a few now and a few then, a dollar off here and a dollar there.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK DOWN ROSE'S STORY IN THE BECKER TRIAL

Becker's reputation," and, then declared Becker said:

"Well, I've tried every way. I must save myself. Police headquarters is flooded with complaints. That place has got to be raided."

Then, according to Rose, when Rosenthal declared both Becker and Rose "out" of their graft, he offered in the place and asserted the bankroll had been lost, Becker said:

THREAT BY BECKER.

"That settles it. He'll never declare anyone else out.

"Now, Jack," Rose declared Becker told him one morning at a meeting in the Union Square Hotel, "you know me. You know I would not ask you to do anything, would not do myself. This fellow Rosenthal is getting dangerous. He must be shut up."

Becker, he said, proposed that "Big Jack" Zelig, who was in the Tombs, be offered a chance to escape fourteen years' imprisonment.

"Tell him I'll get him out if he'll send word to some of his gangmen to croak this fellow Rosenthal," Rose declared Becker told him. Rose said he demurred, but Becker assured him "it was no harm to kill a guy like Rosenthal."

TELLS OF CONFERENCE.

Rose told of the Harlem conference which the Court of Appeals, in reviewing the first trial, described as the "heart of the conspiracy." Here is a partial stenographic report of the testimony:

Q.—When you reached One Hundred and Twenty-third street and Seventh avenue, what did you do? A.—Got out and left the car at Seventh avenue near One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street. Vallon and I walked over to One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street and Seventh avenue, a vacant lot there. I waited there until Becker came.

Q.—How long did you talk with Becker? A.—The time it took Becker to go to the cigar store, about fifteen minutes.

Q.—Relate the conversation. A.—Becker wanted to know what progress was being made, and why all this delay about the fellows getting after Rosenthal, and I told him that they were on the job; that it could not do anything more. They were willing to do it.

Q.—Zelig was still in prison? A.—Still in the Tombs. Becker said, "I will help to get him out on bail." Becker and Webber, who had joined us, stepped aside and talked between themselves. When they returned Becker gave Webber $500, and said, "Here, this will help you in getting that bond, and Webber will look after the rest of it."

Q.—Did you hear any more conversation between Webber and Becker there? A.—Yes, Webber said, "Don't worry, Charlie, you leave it to me now and everything will be attended to, and we will get some results in a couple of days."

Q.—Did you see Becker on the next day? Did you have a conversation with him? A.—I told him I was making vast progress in getting the bail bond for $10,000 for Zelig; that within a day or two I would have him out on bail, and what he wanted would be attended to.

Q.—Did you have a conversation after that with Whitey Lewis and Lefty Louie? A.—I met Lefty Louie and Whitey. I said, "Becker is scared. Rosenthal is threatening to squeal, and that means Becker's job, and that finishes us up, and it is up to the gamblers. It is up to us to protect him. If Rosenthal goes through with this thing it means every one is out of business. It means everything, and we ought to get in and take a hand and help." He (Lefty) asked how he could help, and I said, "Becker wants Rosenthal put out of the way." He said, "Wants him croaked?" I said, "Yes." He said, "All right, we will do it." He said, "I will go down town and do Rosenthal up."

That was a few days before Zelig was released on bail.

Here is the way Rose quoted Becker's demand that Rosenthal be killed as soon as Zelig had been released on the Tombs:

"Becker said, 'Well, I see Zelig is out on bail.' I said, 'Yes.' He said, 'I suppose it will be done tonight?' I said, 'I think so; it won't be many days now.' He said, 'Don't lose a good opportunity. I don't want you to let a favorable opportunity pass at any time. Go and get it done. If it ain't done right away, back goes Zelig into the Tombs.'

"Then when I looked up Zelig I told him, 'Zelig, there is a lot of trouble around Becker and Rosenthal. Things are getting dangerous. Rosenthal is goin to squeal on Becker. Nothing is going to stop him only he is dead. That is what Becker wants. It won't do for any one to have a hand in this thing. You were bailed out with the understanding that you would help, or get fellows to help, and I want you to do something for me. I want you to leave town for a few days, because Rosenthal is going through this, and that means an end of Becker as head of the strong arm squad."

AGREED TO PLAN.

"I gave him the $50 and asked him to go away, and he said he would go to Boston, and everything would be over and he could come back. I said, 'Don't forget, you must come back; don't leave the crowd in a hole for the $10,000 bond.' He said: 'No, I will be back.'"

Q.—When did you next see Becker?

A.—The same day. Becker asked me if I saw Zelig. I told him I had. He said, 'Well, what are they going to do?' I said: 'It is all right; Zelig is on the job.' He said: 'I won't stand Whitey longer.' I did not see Becker again until the next day, when he said: 'I hear that Zelig is not in town.' I said: 'I don't know anything about it; I will find out.'

He said: 'Now, there is something wrong if he is not in town. Why can't his friends do it, his gang?' He said: 'Go up and see them, and have them do it. They know how that I am going into it. Tell them I will give them $1,000 to do it, and there won't be any danger to anybody who has a hand in it. They can depend upon me for that.' I said: 'All right,' and I went up.

Q.—Who did you see there? A.—Lefty Louie and Whitey Lewis, and, for the first time, I met Dago Frank and Gyp the Blood.

Q.—Will you state to the court the conversation that followed? A.—I told them that Becker was insistent that they get out and do this job of croaking Rosenthal. Lefty Louie said: 'All right, we will just as soon as you come and let us know where he is, then we will do it.'

SAW "DETECTIVE."

Rose next told of how he prevented the killing of Rosenthal a few nights before the actual shooting. This part of the story follows:

"When we started for the Garden restaurant Vallon and I trailed behind, and I saw Lefty Louie, Gyp the Blood and Dago Frank standing across the street in the Garden doorway waiting for Rosenthal. Then they began to look at me. I walked up one corner and went over to Lefty Louie and said: 'You see the man across the street?' and I pointed to some man over there. He said: 'Yes.' I said: 'That's a Burns man that Whitman has appointed to protect Rosenthal from any harm. You had better call them fellows off.'

Q.—Did you have any knowledge of any detective that had been hired? A.—No.

Q.—Did you see Becker that night? A.—That was in the morning and I saw him that day. He had already heard about the Garden affair.

He said: 'What is all this business?' He added: 'Now, I have told you what I want done. Walk up in front of a copper, it doesn't make any difference. Break into his house or do anything, but get rid of that fellow, and don't do anything like this again. Don't you see that you are not to help, but don't stop them, or it would have been all over now.' The fellows the day I met Lefty Louie and Lefty Louie came to meet me and I told him. I said, 'No, Louis, that was not a Burns man,' and he says 'I was on.' I says 'You know Zelig is away, he sent him away,' and I said, 'I want you to do the same thing. Take them fellows and go away somewhere for a couple of weeks until this thing blows over. You won't get away with anything now in the present conditions and within a few days it will be all over,' and I paid him $250.

DENIAL OF LAST PLOT.

Rose then told the incident leading up to the actual shooting. The group of gunmen with Webber, Schepps and Rose were in Webber's poker room. Q.—You say you saw Webber in conversation with Lefty Louie? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you hear what he said? A.—No, I did not. He said, "I will be back right away."

Q.—Did he say anything in your presence when he returned? A.—Yes, the exact words, he said something like, "He's around the corner."

Q.—Whom did you see leave the room after you heard him speak? A.—The first man to leave the room was Webber, the next man to leave the room was Frank, then Gyp, then Whitey Lewis. Louie was the last man to leave the room.

After the gunmen left Webber's place Rose said he had no idea what was happening until somebody came in on the run and said Rosenthal had been killed. Rose said he went almost immediately to Broadway and Forty-seventh street and telephoned to Becker at the latter's home.

Q.—What did you say and what did he say? A.—I said, "Hello, there have you heard?" "Yes; good boy."

"When did you hear it?" "Oh," he said, "I heard it some time ago."

He asked: "Where are you?" "I am at Webber's. He said, "It is all right; I will be down, you wait there for me."

Q.Where were you when he came? A.—Sitting on the corner. When I saw him at the corner of Sixth avenue I got up, with Webber and Jack Sullivan, and walked down ahead to a doorway right nearby there. We got into that doorway.

Q.—Did you there have a conversation? A.—Yes, I said, "You were a long time getting down here; where have you been?" He said, "I have been doing some work since I came down." He said he had been in the Forty-seventh street station house. I said, "Did you hear anything?" "Yes," he said. "There are all sorts of rumors around. They took three or four automobile numbers, but I do not think they have the right one."

I asked, "Did you see anything else there?" He said, "Yes, I went back to look at the body." I said, "Did you see it?" He said, "Yes." I said, "Was anybody else there?" He said, "Yes, Whitman was there." He said, "If Whitman wasn't there I would have cut the squealing ——— tongue out and hang it up to a telegraph pole as a warning to future squealers."

ASKED FOR $1,000.

Q.—Did you have any other conversation than you have already stated that morning with Becker?

A.—I wanted about a $1,000 payment. While we were talking in Forty-second street, I said, "How about the fellows?" I said, "You know I promised them $1,000." He said, "Bridgie, you give Jack $1,000 to pay those fellows. I can not get it now. I will have to go to the bank. I will give it back to you."

He said, "The first thing you do, get a lawyer for them and just tell them to sit tight and keep their mouths shut and everything will be all right. Above all tell those four fellows to scatter; get away somewhere for a couple of days, not to do any talking or bragging and everything will be all right."

Q.—Did you see anything of the four men? A.—I met Lefty Louis and Dago Frank. I handed Lefty Louis $1,000, that Webber had given me.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with the defendant Becker on the 17th. A.—He told me Pollock had been to see me and told him I was ill. He said, "Now don't worry, just brace up, everything will be all right; this thing will blow over in a couple of days; do not excite yourself; do not go to pieces.

Police Battle With 3 Men in Tunnel Car

Three men were arrested after a desperate fight in a crowded East Boston tunnel car early today, charged with attempting to pick pockets. Patrolman Carnes and Kelley have been working for days in plain clothes to trace reported pickpockets on the cars.

The three men today, it was asserted, were caught in the act. When the police tried to arrest the men, they fought. The arrested men gave the names of Samuel Lewis, Jacob Herman and Umberto Del Grande.

"Run Again Only on Progressive Platform Accepted by Republicans," Says Roosevelt

By JOHN B. PRATT

Staff Correspondent of the Boston American, returning from South America with Colonel Roosevelt.

Special Cable to the Boston American.

Barbadoes, May 12.—Colonel Roosevelt's health has improved greatly. He is due in New York on May 19th and declares he is homesick.

"Will you be a candidate for the Presidency in 1916?" the Boston American correspondent asked the Colonel rather bluntly.

"I cannot tell if I shall run until later developments," he answered. "But if I do run it must be on a Progressive platform which the Republicans must accept."

Colonel Roosevelt is angry that Sir Clements Robert Markham, the British explorer, challenges his statement that he discovered and explored the hitherto unknown River Duvida in Brazil. He says emphatically he will prove his every statement about his Brazilian explorations when he describes them before the Royal Geographical Society in London.

LAX SYSTEM IN PHILIPPINES IS DENOUNCED

Nathan Kahn, formerly of Chicago and for the past sixteen years a resident of Manila, arrived in Boston today on the Bucknell liner Indradeo. He severely criticised the present administration of Philippine affairs. He said:

"I am not talking for political effect. I've built so long out of the country that I cannot be said to be lined up with any political party. The administration by Francis Burton Harrison is simply raising hell in the Philippines. They are discharging competent officials, men who have done wonderful work at great personal sacrifice. There is a great deal of agitation and unrest in the civil service and among the people generally. This is a result of the loosening up of discipline. The tuition in the service system is shaken and the people are losing confidence.

"Former Governor W. Cameron Forbes was not very popular socially owing to his retiring disposition and his unwillingness to act at public functions. But officially he was an able man and everybody had the highest regard for him."

Urge Commitment of Mrs. E. F. Stiles

WORCESTER, May 13.—Dr. Ernest V. Scribner of the Worcester State Hospital for the insane, today recommended that Mrs. Emma F. Stiles, arrested at Baldwinville, last February in connection with the death of Joseph Gearold, Polish, be committed to some institution for observation.

Helped 885 Girls in Crittenton Home

The annual report of the Florence Crittenton Home of New York shows that during the past year the home assisted 885 girls and cared for 426 out of this total. The report states that it is "plain enough that the downfall of women cannot be attributed to unprotected living in many cases, to low wages or to dwelling in furnished rooms."

Lynn Girl Drinks Dose of Chloroform

"I have ended it all," declared Miss Eleanor Chaffee, twenty-one, daughter of Engineer William F. Chaffee, of the Lynn Fire Department, after swallowing chloroform. According to the police, the girl imagines she had had trouble with her family.

PICK HOBBS AS NEW PRESIDENT OF THE B. & M.

William J. Hobbs, vice-president of the Boston & Maine, will be made president in place of Morris McDonald, whose resignation was tendered several weeks ago, according to men in close touch with the situation today.

James H. Hustis, president of the New Haven, also has been under consideration by the B. & M. management, it is stated. The selection of Mr. Hobbs finally prevailed, however, because of Hustis' New Haven connections.

Numerous other changes, the formal announcement of which will not be made until after Governor Walsh sends his promised message to the Legislature, are known to have been determined upon by the management. Here are the most important:

C. M. Burt, now general passenger agent, promoted to be vice-president of the road.

B. R. Pollock, general manager, remains in the position he now occupies. This is positive, all rumors to the contrary notwithstanding.

The position of general superintendent will be abolished. J. D. Dyer, now general superintendent, will be transferred to the superintendency of the Fitchburg division.

Henry A. Robinson, superintendent of the Southern Division, will be retired on a pension. He has been with the road for forty-five years. The amount of his future pension is not known.

Frank R. Flynn, superintendent of the Fitchburg Division, will be given Robinson's place, superintendent of the Southern Division.

J. L. Shaw, trainmaster of the Portland Division, will be made superintendent of freight transportation. This is a new office. Shaw will have supervision over freight on the entire system.

Warren A. Keay, crew dispatcher at Portland, will be made trainmaster of the Portland Division.

14 Drowned When Collier Capsizes

ALDEBURGH, Eng., May 13.—Fourteen men were drowned today when a steam collier was capsized by a high wind off Southwold.

LEAGUE TO URGE MAYOR TO NAME POLICEWOMEN

The Women's Municipal League will, at their next meeting, take definite action to urge upon Mayor Curley the necessity of appointing policewomen for Boston.

Governor Walsh has affixed his signature to the act which now becomes a law. This law leaves it in the hands of the mayors or selectmen of the cities and towns to appoint one or more women as special policewomen with all the powers now held by constables except those relating to service of civil process and the powers conferred upon the police as watchmen.

If the Women's Municipal League and other women's organizations can prevail upon Mayor Curley to appoint five policewomen for Boston, their work will be confined to the protection of young girls and women as well as attending to cases in the Juvenile Court.

Mrs. Frederick T. Lord of No. 295 Beacon street, head of the publicity committee of the Women's Municipal League, is enthusiastic over the action of the Governor and hopes that Mayor Curley will at once respond.

The matter will also be considered and acted upon at the next meeting of Boston Equal Suffrage Association and City Federation of Women's Clubs.

Caught in Chase on Theft Charge

George Gordon, who said he lives Garland street, South End, was arrested today after a chase down Tremont street, from Winter street, by Ironman Willis of the City Hall cruiser station on the charge of stealing several articles from a handbag carried by Miss Almeda Nelson of Commonwealth avenue, Brighton.

Rockefeller, Jr., teaches a Bible class. He was held without bail pending an investigation by a probation officer.

Pavlowa Rouge Kiss Soils Kaiser's Glove

BERLIN, May 13.—Anna Pavlowa, the Russian dancer, when called to the royal box after the performance at the Brunswick, imprinted a kiss from her rouged lips on the Kaiser's white glove, leaving a red mark. The dancer became greatly agitated and alarmed when she saw what had happened, but the Kaiser assured her that it did not matter.

BRITAIN'S HEIR BESTS WORKMAN AT FISTICUFFS

LONDON, May 13.—The Prince of Wales has just had his first encounter with a British workman in the shape of a brief bout at fisticuffs with the driver of a laundry wagon at Oxford. The driver was worsted.

The man was delivering baskets at Keble College when three students drove the wagon away and left it in a side street. Then they awaited developments.

The culprits were joined by the Prince, when another driver rushed at the group, selecting Wales for attack. He tapped the princely claret and fetched the royal chest. The next instant the Prince landed a blow on the driver's face that staggered him. The students then declared the fight ended, with honors even.

The Prince soothed his opponent's feelings with a crisp and a gold coin. When the yahman learned whom he had punched he declared, "For such a sickly-looking fellow 'e can 'it 'ard an' rough."

Dean Polk Weds Boston Woman

NEW YORK, May 13.—Dr. William M. Polk, dean of the Cornell University Medical College and father of Frank L. Polk, corporation counsel of the city of New York, and Miss Maria H. Dehon of No. 218 Fifth avenue, are on their honeymoon today. Dr. Polk called on Chief Clerk Scully at City Hall and obtained a license. He gave his age as sixty-nine and Miss Dehon said she was fifty-six and was born in Boston.

Watchman Struck by Freight Train

David Barry, forty-three, employed as watchman in the Boston & Albany yards, was struck by a freight train which backed down on him today near tower No. 4, and thrown across the tracks. He wriggled his body off the tracks by catching hold of a rail. A wheel on one of the cars crushed his thumb. He was hurried to the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he was also found to be suffering from a fracture of the left collar bone and broken ribs.

A Neglected Cold Often Affects the Lungs

Many serious cases of Throat or Lung Trouble can be directly traced to a cough or cold which has been neglected. If you notice that a cough persists in clinging to you after warning. If you neglect trying to stop this supposed trivial trouble the throat and bronchial tubes become affected, in many cases Eckman's Alterative has been the means of bringing permanent relief. Investigate this case:

Samson, N. Y.

"Gentlemen:—For five or six years I was troubled with coughs and expectoration. I also had a high fever. My son was declared Lung Trouble by my physician. I was given all kinds of medicine, but the medicine did me all without benefit. At Christmas time, 1908, I was not expected to live. My son, Dr. Frank H. McCarthy, he advised the use of Eckman's Alterative. I took the first bottle about 2 months. I have gained in weight. I do not feel all weakness and have had no cough or cold whatever. It gives me pleasure to encourage others to use Eckman's Alterative."

(Affidavit) JAS. W. KANALL.

(Others abbreviated; more on request.)

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and to rebuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit forming drugs. Sold by leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

HOME RULE BILL IS UP FOR FINAL PASSAGE MAY 31

LONDON, May 13.—The Home Rule bill comes up for its third and final passage May 31, according to announcement by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons.

There was general discussion today of his further important announcement that the government was willing to introduce an amending bill to give effect to any compromise that the government, the Ulster Unionists and the Irish Nationalists could agree upon.

This compromise would have to do with the Ulster problem, and would be probably on the lines already suggested, namely, that the four Orange counties be given the privilege of remaining outside the scope of the Home Rule bill for a period of six years.

The point of the Premier's announcement is that the Home Rule bill must go through its third passage in Parliament in the same form as it went through two previous sessions in order to become a law under the Parliament act without the indorsement of the House of Lords.

Joke Is Played On Chamber Members

The committee planning the Spring Gambol of the Chamber of Commerce, to be held at the Copley-Plaza on the 19th, after arranging the Gambol program had a few "stunts" left over, so worked one on some of the members. Two score members in return for their ticket applications received envelopes containing no tickets, but a notice to call the committee by phone, and signed "S. U. Rosary."

When the victims telephoned, they were "kidded along" for a time, and then the signature to the notice in the envelope was commended to their close attention.

O'SHAUGHNESSY TELLS WILSON THAT UNITED STATES MUST ASSUME CONTROL IN MEXICO

'HUERTA GAME,' SAYS CHARGE D'AFFAIRES

WASHINGTON, May 13.—There will be no peace or established government in Mexico unless the United States takes hold of the situation with a strong hand, declares Nelson O'Shaughnessy, late United States charge d'affaires in the City of Mexico, who has just had a conference with the President.

"Do you mean the United States would have to take control of the country, restore order and then undertake to establish a government satisfactory to all factions?" Mr. O'Shaughnessy was asked.

"I would not want to say that," he answered. "All I wish to say is that the influence of the United States will have to be exerted to make it possible for a government to be organized which all parties will respect."

"Do you mean to suggest that the American army should march from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, take possession of the capital and then call in the leaders to see if a permanent government may not be formed?"

"No. I would not wish to be quoted as saying that. I must dodge that question because I do not know what the plans of the government are."

"How could the United States use its influence?"

"We could convince the leaders of the factions that the only solution of their problems was a government formed with the support of the United States."

CONTROL IS NEEDED.

"Would the interference of the United States involve supervision of an election in order to insure a free, untrammeled vote by the people of all factions in Mexico?"

"Yes, it might be necessary for this country to exercise some control over the elections in the interest of the American people, if a constitutional government were to be assured. Some friendly force would have to take charge for order to secure a free election."

"Why did General Huerta so stubbornly refuse the demands of the United States for a salute in reparation for the insult to the flag at Tampico?" Mr. O'Shaughnessy was asked.

"Why, I don't believe he realized what the consequences would be," said he. "He did not seem to appreciate what a serious thing the arrest of the United States seamen at Tampico was.

HUERTA HAS CAPACITY."

"I do not think General Huerta has been deliberately trying to precipitate war with the United States. He is a pretty game old fellow. He is not as bad as he is pictured. He is not a drunkard.

"I have read stories depicting him as a confirmed inebriate, perhaps I might use the term soaker. When he drinks he drinks liberally, but then he has a great capacity.

"General Huerta takes five or six drinks, one right after the other, just as some men I have met in New York take five or six cocktails before dinner or five or six highballs at one sitting. But the old man can stand them."

Mr. O'Shaughnessy said he was afraid his secretary, Louis d'Antin, whom he left behind at the Brazilian legation, might become involved with some of the Mexicans.

"D'Antin is an intense American," said Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

HUERTA TRYING TO 'GET OUT FROM UNDER'

By WILLIAM NELSON TAFT.
Staff Correspondent of the American at the White House.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Huerta must go. President Wilson is determined that the dictator must be eliminated from the Mexican situation. He has taken that position ever since the Mexican crisis arose and his opposition has been strengthened, it became known today, as a result of the information given him by Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy at their conference last night.

The opinion held at the White House now is that Huerta, sorely pressed by Villa on the north and Zapata on the south, is anxious to bring about intervention by the United States in such a way as to "get out from under." President Wilson is as strongly determined that there shall be no intervention.

MEDIATION DOOMED.

There is no doubt that a rapid succession of victories by the Constitutionalists would be welcomed. If the Carranzistas could drive Huerta out it would hasten the dawn of peace in Mexico. The doom of mediation in the Mexican trouble was a step nearer today. This was the accepted view in diplomatic circles following the demand of President Huerta that the American forces vacate Lobos Island and the announcement by Secretary Bryan that the forces would stay on the island.

The Secretary told the mediators that this government did not consider the seizure an act of war. This incident stood out as the chief menace to peace between the United States and Huerta, although the mediators declined to say whether Huerta's demand included a threat to withdraw from the negotiations.

The mediators still are working on a provisional government plan for Mexico in the form of a protocol, but it is believed here that this will fail because the Constitutionalists will not accept it.

TO FREE SILLIMAN.

The State Department has been assured that John R. Silliman, vice and deputy consul of Saltillo, will be freed and sent out of Mexico, but as yet there has been no definite report of his release. The report that Private Samual Parks of the Twenty-eighth Infantry at Vera Cruz, was tortured before a Mexican firing squad executed him, has not been confirmed officially, but is generally received here as true.

Another soldier has met death at Vera Cruz. Private Maurice Welsh of the Nineteenth Infantry, General Funston reported to the War Department, was killed by falling from a roof while on sentry duty.

ZARAGOSA, SHELLS EXHAUSTED, READY TO FLEE TAMPICO

VERA CRUZ, May 13.—The collier Oswald Boyd became disabled today while bringing 663 refugees to Vera Cruz from Tampico. The Alfonso XIII, immediately put to sea and rescued the survivors from the helpless collier.

The Tampico refugees declare that General Zaragoza, the Federal commander, is preparing to evacuate, all his artillery ammunition having become exhausted. One hundred railroad cars and two engines are being held in readiness to take the Federals to San Luis Potosi.

General Zaragoza has levied $75,000 from the merchants of Tampico.

BULLETINS

VERA CRUZ, May 13.—General Navarette, the Mexican commander at Jalapa, has sent the following message here to deny reports that the Federals have begun an advance against Vera Cruz:

"Pursuant to orders received, I have ceased all offensive movements while the armistice lasts."

EL PASO, Tex., May 13.—By agreement with General Carranza, Zapata, the bandit general, will unite with General Villa in an attack on Mexico City.

Announcement of the pact between the rebel leaders was made today by Roberto Pesquiera, in charge of the Constitutionalist headquarters here.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Secretary Bryan today announced the appointment of H. Percival Dodge, former Minister to Panama, as secretary to the representatives of the United States at the mediation conference to be held at Niagara Falls next Monday.

VERA CRUZ, May 13.—Mexican "snipers" are trying to kill American naval aviators. An examination of the aeroplane used by Lieutenant Bellinger yesterday showed that one wing had been punctured by a rifle bullet.

DRASTIC ACTION IF PARKS WAS TORTURED

until an investigation now being made clearly proves that Parks was not in the wrong in going in to the enemy's lines.

"An Act of Barbarism."

"If polite, decent measure fail," said Mr. Garrison, "then we will take the next step. If he was tortured it was an act of barbarism, whether war was on or not. We do not want to make any missteps in a delicate situation. We do not want to inflame the country.

"Consequently all we have done thus far is to ask information, for we feel that the initial responsibility lies with the private for deserting his command. Of course we feel that he must have been insane, but we have no proof of the reason for his departure."

Secretary Garrison today ordered General Funston to fully investigate Parks' case. Secretary Bryan made a similar request of President Huerta through the Brazilian Minister at Mexico City.

Medill McCormick, the Chicago Progressive leader, who visited Mexico City as a war correspondent, and who was arrested there, declares Parks was executed Friday morning by order of the commandant of the Federal post at Tejoria, Mex., and his body burned. He wires:

"When Parks strayed from the lines Thursday he fell in with a Mexican patrol which seized his horse and beat him almost into insensibility with the butts of their rifles. He was dragged to Tejeria, where he was bound hand and foot and thrown into a room in the commandant's house to await his execution in the morning.

"The man through whom I learned of Parks' death caught sight of him from the door of another room and managed to get near enough to Parks to whisper to him unnoticed by the other Mexicans present. Necessarily he could hear little of what Parks said. He told me he caught the words 'Samuel Parks, 28th Infantry. Tell my commanding officer.'

"Parks' messenger, for so I call him, dared not return to the American lines before dawn. A little after daylight Parks was led out before the firing squad.

SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA AND STOPS ITCHING

With the first application of boiled-sulphur cream the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common boiled sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied and itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disapears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of boil-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin the same as you would any cold cream. For many years this sculphur healing sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always entirely healing a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

FALL OF TAMPICO IS NEAR, MAYO REPORTS

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The capitulation of Tampico seems to be imminent, Admiral Mayo reported to the Navy Department today. Constitutionalists have advised the Admiral that they expect to capture the city today. His dispatch reads:

"There has been heavy firing at Tampico since midnight. The Constitutionalists expect to capture Tampico today. The general impression seems to be that the expectations of the Constitutionalists will be realized."

This latest dispatch from Admiral Mayo was transmitted by Admiral Badger at 11:16, and received at Washington at 11:23 a. m.

A report received from Rear-Admiral Mayo earlier in the day by the Navy Department said that heavy firing around Tampico ceased at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, but that Constitutionalists renewed the attack early today. Admiral Mayo said his

CAMBRIDGE MOURNS MARTYR OF VERA CRUZ

The bodies of Percy and Watson were forwarded to their respective destinations and that of Haggerty was borne to the sorrowful home at No. 16 Harding street, East Cambridge. There the body was left with the stricken family, the weeping parents, brothers and sisters. Later today it will be removed to Cambridgeport Armory, where it will lie in state until the public military funeral tomorrow.

MONTANA DELAYED BY STORM.

The Montana, which left New York Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, was delayed by a northeast thunder storm which raged along the North Atlantic coast last night.

It seemed as though the very elements singed a funeral setting for the home-coming of the gallant New England trio. Thunder rolled and lightning crackled. The wind howled at a fifty-mile rate and the rain beat upon the drab vessel as it ploughed across Massachusetts Bay.

The thunder and lightning ceased as the night wore on, but the rain continued, and dawn broke upon a bleak, rain-swept ocean as the cruiser came nearer the end of its sad voyage.

Commander Louis M. Nulton brought the Montana to anchor about ten miles outside the harbor entrance, and the vessel was dimly made out at that distance by the lookout at Fort Warren at 7 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock the wireless operator at Fort Warren picked up a message from the Montana that there was a heavy gale outside, and the cruiser was not coming in "for a while."

WARSHIP ENTERS HARBOR.

But the gale subsided a bit then and the weather cleared a little, though nothing like the clear air that the commander of a warship likes when he has to enter a land-locked harbor.

A few minutes after 8 o'clock the Montana took a pilot aboard at Boston Light and, under an eight-knot speed, cautiously nosed its way through Broad Sound and up the harbor.

The funeral ship held the attention of the entire waterfront, as it came along and swung about toward the navy yard. At the Union Iron Works at the fore and the Stars and Stripes astern, The flags were not at half mast, for the Montana was still sailing and the navy regulations forbid any naval vessel to have flags half masted while en voyage.

THRONG WAITS IN RAIN.

At the navy yard a throng which, in spite of the rain and chilling wind, had increased fully one thousand, silently watched the grim, gray seafighter approach with the nation's honored dead.

The merchant marine—the liners, easterns and other vessels in the harbor, even to the ferry boats, had their flags half-masted as the Montana came along.

Seafaring men noted that the Montana was making for the navy yard under her own steam, not being towed to her berth by tugs. The United States Navy tug Siong and another navy tug, which went down to meet the cruiser, and which convoyed her up the harbor, stood by, ready to give any help necessary, in pushing her to the pier. But the cruiser, looking so squat and unwieldy on the water, slid up to navy yard Pier 6 without help, even though a high wind was blowing and a strong tide running.

Navy Yard workmen kept on at their tasks, for officially the dead had not arrived yet, not until they were ashore. But the work of coaling the battleship Rhode Island at Pier 5, which had been in progress for two hours, was ceased ere the Montana came into the upper harbor, because the coaling is done to sprightly band music, that the men may work easier.

The Montana docked at exactly 9:45. Then the flags at bow and stern were lowered to half-mast. The flags on the Rhode Island, the receiving ship North Carolina, torpedo boat destroyer Duncan, revenue cutter Gresham and frigate Constitution were already lowered. The flag of the navy yard was likewise at half-mast.

But no salute was fired, because the bodies were officially in transit, to be conveyed to Cambridge, Eastham and Concord, N. H., respectively.

VETERANS ON GUARD.

The moment the cruiser docked the two yard ambulances, one horse-drawn, the other a motor vehicle, came on Pier 5. Two sailors were brought off, placed in the ambulances and taken away, presumably to Chelsea Naval Hospital.

Captain of the Yard Oman went aboard to confer with Commander Nulton on handing over the bodies of the heroes.

The guard of honor from Trimountain Garrison, consisting of twelve men representing various organizations, stood at the end of the pier till time for the bodies to be lowered ashore. There were twelve men in this guard of honor—Civil and Spanish War veterans. One aged man, in G. A. R. uniform, and leaning upon a cane, flanked the line and stood with head erect, waiting for the bodies to be landed.

The thousands of people in the yard beyond the police-lined stood with heads uncovered as the big ship was moored.

All civilians were barred from the pier by order of the captain of the yard. Six marines in blue uniform overcoats patrolled the pier-head and kept back the throng.

Shortly after the Trimountain Garrison guard arrived came another guard of honor, twelve marines from the Rhode Island. These men were in dress uniform, with rifles, bayonets and revolvers. They wore no overcoats. Until the bodies were lowered ashore, they stood at ease, but when the Montana's bugle signalled the landing of the bodies they were standing at attention.

CAPS UNCOVER IN FALLING RAIN.

Commandant Coffman, Lieutenant Commander Brotherton and other officers arrived shortly before the bodies were landed. Before that time the Montana's seamen and marines were about the decks, but when the bugle signalled, they were arrayed in ordered ranks.

The body of Private Percy will be escorted by a detachment of sixteen marines to the North Station, whence it will be sent to his home in Concord, N. H. The body of Seaman Watson will be escorted by a similar detail to the South Station. His body will be accompanied by a detail of four sailors from the North Carolina to Orleans, and they will act as the bearers and escort at the funeral there tomorrow.

The Montana's crew will not participate in the exercises at the yard or in the funeral procession. The ship will sail as soon as possible, probably during the afternoon, for Portsmouth, N. H., where it is due tomorrow, to take aboard supplies and additional men for the fleet.

BOSTON FLAGS DROOP.

Mrs. Oliver Ames conferred by telephone with the officers at the Navy yard regarding the funeral plans for Corporal Haggerty. She announced that she had sent a wreath to his home as her tribute to his patriotism, and that she would attend the service at the church tomorrow.

Boston flags, on city and private buildings and homes, are at half mast today in honor of the dead. Cambridge flags are also at half staff.

Today all of the Cambridge schools, thirty-nine in number, held special exercises in honor of Haggerty. The Cambridge High and Latin School pupils sang patriotic songs and listened to word of patriotism from two members of the G. A. R.

The exercises in the grammar, intermediate and primary schools were be held in the afternoon. These exercises took the form also in patriotism and the read ing of President Wilson's address at the Brooklyn Navy Yard Monday. Members of the G. A. R. posts also spoke at these schools.

Tomorrow the schools will be closed between 10 a. m. and noon.

Bearing up bravely under grief over the death of son and brother, Michael Haggerty, father of Corporal Daniel A. Haggerty, and three brothers and two sisters yielded to the counsel of Mayor Goode and others, who have made arrangements for the funeral of Cambridge's hero who fell at Vera Cruz and allowed the plans to stand, despite the failure of the body to arrive yesterday as the Haggerty home, as expected.

The public will be allowed to view the body probably from 1 to 11. The guard of Trimountain Garrison will be continued until the body is taken on Thursday morning to St. Patrick's Church for the funeral mass.

The workmen of George F. Blake Pump Works, where Corporal Haggerty was at one time employed, will be lined up in the plant, and other manufacturing concerns will follow the example of tribute as the funeral procession passes.

At City Hall thousands of school children will be massed to pay tribute.

WREATH FROM WILSON.

Expecting that Corporal Haggerty's body would reach home yesterday, 300 men, women and children gathered on Cambridge Field, opposite the home. Groups of children paraded Cambridge streets, carrying flags and carrying pictures of Haggerty. Cambridge and Harding streets were decorated profusely with American flags, and many of the public buildings were draped in black.

President Wilson has sent a floral wreath to the Haggerty home as his token of honor for the dead corporal. The box containing the wreath directs that it be left unopened until the body arrives.

GOVERNOR CALLS FOR GENERAL DISPLAY OF FLAGS TOMORROW

By order of the Governor, flags upon all armories and public buildings will be displayed at half-staff tomorrow from sunrise to sunset in commemoration of Corporal Haggerty and Private Watson.

Captain Daniel M. Goodridge, commanding the Naval Brigade, by order of the Governor will detail G Company, the New Bedford division of the brigade, under command of Lieutenant Homer G. Parent, chief of division, to go to Eastham for escort duty at the funeral of Watson. The Governor will also make a detail of his personal staff to go to Eastham to represent him and the State.

By request of Governor Walsh, the flags on all schoolhouses in the State will be placed at half-staff, and citizens in general are asked to display the flag.

BODY OF MARINE WATSON ESCORTED TO SOUTH STATION

The body of Rufus Watson, able seaman of Orleans, who fell at Vera Cruz, was escorted to the South station via Washington street, by a marine guard of seventeen men from the battleship Rhode Island under the command of Corporal C. A. Mason. Six gunners' mates from the Montana commanded by W. J. Lotch, also accompanied the body.

Along the line of march crowds stopped and uncovered their heads in honor of the dead hero as the flag-draped casket, surmounted by a huge smilax and lily wreath, was borne past them in the open ambulance.

The arrangements for the departure of the body were made by Shipping Clerk R. F. O'Hayre, from the Navy Yard, and Undertaker J. B. Steele of Orleans had charge of the remains. The casket was put aboard the 4:38 p. m. train to await the journey for the Cape.

A firing squad from the Navy Yard will go to Orleans tomorrow to fire a salute over the open grave.

MONTANA CREW OF 150 MEN GET SHORE LEAVE OF 12 HOURS

One hundred and fifty men from the cruiser Montana, which brought north the bodies of the three marines and arrived here today, were given twelve hours shore liberty, beginning late today. The cruiser coaled and will go tomorrow to Portsmouth navy yard for repairs and refitting.

Forty-six bluejackets and a marine, wounded or ill, were brought here on the Montana from the Brooklyn Naval Hospital and sent to the Chelsea Hospital to make room at the Brooklyn Hospital for wounded on the hospital ship Solace, soon to arrive at New York.

GISTURNE OF QUINCY, SHOT AT VERA CRUZ, HAD LEG AMPUTATED

Edward A. Gisturne of Quincy, the signal boy to the captain of the battleship Florlad, who was shot while signalling from the roof of a hotel in Vera Cruz, has had his left leg amputated, according to a letter he sent a Quincy friend. Young Gisturne is on the hospital ship Solace.

"U. S. S. Solace, at Sea,
May 2, 1914.

"Dear Old Friend: The first mail after the news of the fighting reached the States, brought me fifteen letters, not one more welcome than yours.

"I dare say grandma was a bit frightened, but I am O. K. and nearly whole. Nearly whole means that I have lost my left leg about three inches above the knee. I was shot through the knee and all the bones were shattered. I bled for twelve hours and then gas infection set in. When I got to the operating table it was a question of minutes. There wasn't even time to shave my leg before amputating. The stump is healing rapidly, but the nerves are giving me a run. It seems that I have intense pain in the foot that is gone.

"Best regards and remember me to all the boys. I shall be here for the month or so. I'm on my way to the New York Naval Hospital, where I expect to get on my 'feet' again; then, Ho for home.

"Yours in a bed propped up on pillows, the mill (typewriter) alongside.

"GISSY."

ARRANGE TO HAVE BAY STATE QUOTA CALLED WITH OTHERS

In the event of a call for State troops by the Federal Government Massachusetts will surely be called upon to furnish its quota, together with all the other States in the Union, on a pro rata population basis, according to Major John W. Heavey. He has just returned from a consultation at Washington with the War Department officials, made at the request of Governor Walsh.

Governor Walsh, as Commander-in-Chief of the State Militia, has ordered that the following officers, who have been rejected by the medical board, may have until May 20 to request retirement. If they fail to do so they will be placed on the retired list by direction of the Governor:

Major George I. Canfield, Eighth Regiment; Major Phineas L. Rider, Second Regiment; Captain Horace R. Parker, Pay Department; First Lieutenant John F. Williams, Company F, Fifth Regiment; Second Lieutenant Archie F. Murray, Company A, Second Regiment; First Lieutenant Ernest W. Draper, Company M, Sixth Regiment.

The following who have failed to appear before the medical board have been ordered to appear before that board and take an examination prior to May 20:

Colonel Charles Hayden, Pay Department; Captain Daniel M. Goodridge, Naval Brigade; Major Albert G. Beckmann, 2d Regiment; Major George F. H. Murray, 9th Regiment; Captain Edwin C. Barrett, Co. A, 2d Regiment; Captain Jeremiah J. McDowell, Co. D, 6th Regiment; Captain William J. Greene, Co. E, 9th Regiment; Lieutenant Frank P. Turner, Naval Brigade; Second Lieutenant William O'Brien, Co. M, 2d Regiment.

PRAISES GALLANTRY THAT COST HAGGERTY HIS LIFE

Michael Haggerty of Cambridge, father of Corporal Haggerty, has received a letter from Edward J. Cantwell of No. 1059 Bay street, Fall River, an old friend, which he highly prizes. It reads:

"My Dear Friend:—As an old friend and fellow-townsman, I extend my profound sympathy to you and your family in the great loss you have sustained by the death of your gallant son, Daniel Aloysius. I mourn with you in his early death. I knew and loved him for his modesty. Associated with him in the workshop and church societies, I had a chance to study his habits, knowing him as I did from the cradle to his young manhood.

"He possessed in a marked degree the sublime traits that enoble man here below and fit him for an endless heritagle beyond the shadows. I mourn with you for the devoted son, beloved brother and generous friend, cut down in the flower of his youth by a bullet of an unseen foe. I mourn with you and the members of your family in your sorrow, but in that great sorrow we find consolation and even joy that Ireland in America has again testified her love for the Stars and Stripes. "Daniel Aloysius Haggerty, the gallant son of an Irish immigrant and a native son of the old hill top town of North Brookfield, died as becoming the race from which he sprang, died on a foreign field, but wrapt within the folds of the glorious emblem for whose honor and perpetration his race and faith offered their lives in love and supreme sacrifice from the gory heights of Bunker Hill to Appomattix, and from San Juan to the burning sands of Mexico.

"Thus died Daniel Aloysius Haggerty—your son, my cherished friend—the unswerving friend of all who love liberty and our beloved republic in its broadest sense. And now, dear friend, lay my humble tribute of respect and love on the bier of him whom I will never see again, but whose memory I will ever cherish. Farewell, gallant soldier, though gone forever from our midst. Your memory and achievements will inscribe your name in the imperishable scroll of national honor, and crown you now with the unfading laurels of God's own making in that kingdom reserved for those who loved the flag and God-given liberty in its broadest sense.

"Yours in sympathy,
"EDWARD J. CANTWELL."

Mayor Good's Appeal for Tribute to Haggerty

DANIEL ALOYSIUS HAGGERTY, Corporal of Marines, has ended his last enlistment. Heroically volunteering for a dangerous duty, he was struck down by a Mexican bullet. His body, with the wreath of a nation's tribute on the casket, has come home to be laid to rest.

"Dan" Haggerty was a Cambridge boy; and when he died he won not only deathless honor forhimself, but bestowed high distinction upon this city.

It is fitting that we, in commemoration, pay him every observance in our power. I ask all citizens to join in doing him honor. Let all flags be at half-staff on Wednesday and Thursday. I suggest a cessation from business during the funeral hour. Let every man and woman at that hour pause from their daily duties to render silent tribute to the honored dead.— Appeal issued by Mayor Timothy W. Good of Cambridge, in charge of the public tribute to Daniel A. Haggerty.

INTENSE ITCHING BURNING OF LEG

Ankle Broke Out in Pimples. Whole Knee Solid Sore. Could Scarcely Sleep. Could Not Wear Shoe. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

North Troy, Vt.—"My son cut his foot on a piece of glass. The sore got bad and the ankle broke out in pimples. The leg up to the knee and the whole knee was a solid sore. It would come to a pimple and spread to a sore as large as a silver dollar. He would scratch when the bandage was taken off. He could not bend his leg or let it hang down. It would pain him so badly. It was a raw sore, discharged thick yellowish matter, was red and inflamed around the outer edge. It would itch and burning so he could scarcely sleep. The itching and burning were intense at times. He could not wear a shoe. The sore would smart and burn when exposed to the air. I would have to wash it three times a day. The leg was all matter from the time it commenced to break out in sores.

"It happened to think of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and thought I would try them. It soon began to heal. In one week's time there was a great improvement and in four weeks it was all healed up and cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. H. Holcomb, May 26, 1913.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have been the favorites for the treatment of eczemas, rashes, itchings, irritations and other torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp. ## BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel, but to establish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the work that calomel does, but without after effects. They don't loosen the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the torpid liver gently but surely, and move the bile in the right direction. At the same time they "tone" the liver to the extent that it will perform its functions naturally. Take one or two Olive Tablets at night and you will be feeling fine next morning. Don't stop using them because they are mild. They are gentle but sure. Ask your druggist for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Price, 25 and 50 cents per box. Sold by druggists everywhere.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Circulation That Counts

—And a Statement That Tells Its Own Story

SO that he who runs may read, the Boston American appends its net paid circulation figures for the six months ending March 31st, 1914, as sworn to and filed with the United States Government and published in the American April 4th, 1914. The facts are in the figures, which speak for themselves. They establish the Quantity of American circulation beyond question or doubt—just as the story which follows carries absolute conviction of its Quality.

The Boston American has a matchless circulation—a circulation of unusual quantity, purchasing power and responsiveness.

Its influence is recognized wherever intimate knowledge of newspapers exists. Its reading contents are in perfect accord with everything that signifies civic and national progressiveness.

These attributes have combined to give the Boston American one of the largest attested circulations in the newspaper field in America, and to make it one of the strongest advertising mediums in New England.

Since it was established, the American has been essentially a wide-awake, up-to-the-minute newspaper, and by satisfying its clientele has succeeded in doing what no other newspaper has ever done before on so large a scale in so short a while.

It represents a mass of buying readers of such tremendous proportion that the circulation of other evening newspapers in the same territory—or in any similar territory—is dimmed when brought into comparison.

Its productiveness as an advertising medium for all classes of advertisers is due to its all-embracing circulation—its solid, day-after-day envelopment of Boston and suburban territory—and the inherent influence it has with its enrolled army of followers.

Sundays . . . . . 22,850 Gain

A Million Dollars a Day

Readers of the Boston American have a buying power of a Million Dollars a day.

Yes, and that is a conservative estimate. That sum represents the American's circulation strength. Now, let's see how this strength is exercised—the character of intellect behind it.

It is conceded that a newspaper will attract just that clientele to which its appeal is directed. It will be read, and its advertising responded to, by people of the same order of intelligence as that which is reflected in its news columns.

The Boston American's pages attract the most alert minds of the commonwealth—minds which are most susceptible to advertising's appeal—minds backed by means sufficient to gratify every desire that advertising creates.

The American's news service is matchless. Its features are of incomparable excellence—features which find favor wherever there is the spirit of progressiveness, and which have welded strong bonds between this newspaper and more than Four Hundred Thousand readers daily.

The Biggest Business Builder

Where business and finance are concerned, no other newspaper in the United States draws from such authoritative sources. In foreign and cable news, likewise, the American employs unequalled facilities. It leads in completeness and in integrity of service.

In addition, the foremost leaders of American thought contribute their best writings to these pages—and here the keenest editorial minds find daily expression. Bigger, broader lines than those on which the Boston American is constructed were never laid down by a newspaper.

What advertiser can contemplate the character and extent of the American's circulation—the vast following of ready-to-buy readers—without appreciating the manifold advantages of this newspaper as a means of business building.

What advertiser can fail to realize that it offers him the opportunity to cover the Boston evening field—reach the bulk of the community's buying power—without wasting even the smallest particle of his advertising energy.

And what advertiser, realizing all this, can fail to take advantage of a medium that will so certainly put him into profitable communication with the more than 400,000 readers reached by the Boston American daily.

This circulation fact, coupled with its inherent qualities, the rich possibilities of its field, the prompt responsiveness of its readers to intelligent advertising and its reasonable advertising rates, make it a profitable medium of publicity for all active and prospective advertisers desirous of increasing their patronage—multiplying their profits.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were inert this afternoon, a number of the most important showing no price change from the last quotation on Tuesday. Among those of which this could be said is New York were Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Lehigh Valley, New Haven, American Telephone, Steel, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Union Pacific. Canadian Pacific was the weakest of the leaders, being off a point. Reading had receded ⅜ and American Can ½; Amalgamated was up ⅜ and Utah Copper ⅝. Professional traders were disheartened by absolute indifference of the public to the stock market.

In Boston there was relatively more business and the list was irregular. Pond Creek was up 1 and United Fruit 2. There were fractional losses for Greene-Cananea, Boston & Maine and Isle Royale, while Granby was down a point. Gains included American Telephone ¼, Calumet & Arizona ⅝, North Butte ⅛ and Butte & Superior ½. The last named was one of the most active issues.

EVERYBODY WAS WAITING.

At the opening in New York there was quiet and irregularity, the apathy of yesterday still being in evidence. Most traders were of the opinion that unless something unexpected happened the present period of dullness will continue for a long while. Everybody is disposed to await legislation, the outcome of Mexican mediation and crop developments. Missouri Pacific opened unchanged, declined, recovered and showed a gain within a few minutes. It is said in regard to this issue, which at present is more discussed than any other on the list, that banks have expect that it will be a $30 assessment on the stock in the event of the noteholders agreeing to grant a time extension when $25,000,000 of such obligations mature on June 1. Such an assessment would realise about $16,750,000 in new capital.

AMERICANS DULL ABROAD.

There was not much business in American stocks in London and they were fractionally lower. Exchange of that city was quoted at 84.8895. Canada was steady and it is reported that the present settlement period is progressing satisfactorily, but that the eagerness of great Continental powers to accumulate gold is a cause for anxiety. Another of the difficulties of certain houses extensively committed in connection with Canadian stocks. It is said that strong banking interests are assisting in this crisis. Hon. W. H. Lawson writes from London to Hearst newspapers:

"Money is not hoarded, by means of the stock exchange, but is sent to the city of their birth. Any one who knows London as Wilson would largely dispel the prevailing gloom. The sending of gold into Canada, if it once stimulated the Mexican markets, but only diminishes here comparatively little the most accurate. All Mexican securities have in the past brought more here than they sent out. Confidence and bear selling have been active in London."

One explanation of New York gold shipments to Paris is that it has connection with the expected offering of a large French government loan.

MEXICO HELPED DEPRESS.

Although the market had a fairly firm undertone, sentiment was hearish and one reason for the depression is the Mexican situation. The average operator regards it gloomily. An early gain of Chesapeake and Ohio was attributed to covering of recent operations induced by belief that the road will reduce its dividend rate. There was more business in the first hour than yesterday, transactions for that period today totalling nearly 60,000 shares. Little change was observed during the morning, but late in the forenoon a majority of active issues showed small gains. Rumors that a decision on the Eastern freight rate case is imminent were positively denied at the quarters of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington. Although it is reported that there has been recent buying of fair amounts of electrolytic by domestic consumers at 14¼ cents a pound, there was little demand for copper shares.

By midday many prominent stocks were unchanged from last night's final prices. Others showed very small gains or losses.

UNITED FRUIT STRONG.

The rise in United Fruit was the feature of the Boston market, it having advanced three points by afternoon. It was unusually active. At the start the local market suffered from stagnation, but business improved during the first hour, and the tone strengthened. Among issues in demand were Pond Creek. At noon it had advanced more than a point.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

It is stated that steel plants are now operating on an average at about 60 per cent. of capacity, against 68 two weeks ago.

For the fiscal year ended by March gross sales of the American Sugar Company amounted to $5,085,686, a decrease of $1,585,950 from the record of 1913. The cost of preparing the product for market was $6,912,774, a rise of $1,315,564, and selling expenses of $1,987,877 were $311,591 more than in the preceding year.

The London copper warrants market was quiet this morning, and by noon spot and futures were off 1s. 50, and 2s. 6d., respectively.

If you had made as good a contract for the people of Boston with the Electric Light Company as the city of Jacksonville, Florida, made with its Electric Light Company, Boston would save about one million, two hundred and thirty thousand dollars during period of the contract which you wish to foist upon Boston. He has shown, as we have always gladly acknowledged, remarkable patience, high-mindedness and forbearance in pursuing his ideal."

WATERMANSHIP STILL POOR IN THE YALE CREW

By CONSTANCE S. TITUS.
American's Foremost Amateur Oarsman.

NEW HAVEN, May 13.—Yale's crews have improved since I last saw them, but not as much as they should have.

The first and second varsity have a nice body swing, but their watermanship is poor. I think this fault is greatly due to the English oars and the old-fashioned English thole pin. There is a great deal of lost motion, and at every stroke the button of the oar slips away from the after pin from two to three inches. Therefore each man has to finish his oar out against the pull pin every time before he catches the water, and some of them pull them in further than others, while some push them out harder and faster. This continuous jarring helps throw the boat off the keel.

SECOND VARSITY WORKS WELL.

The water was very good and I think the second varsity do a good piece of work for about a mile with a stern breeze. They got away from the mark rowing thirty-seven to the minute. Their spurting was very good for a second varsity crew, and they also ran very well between strokes. Her her old rival, John Harvard, will see how good she really is Saturday in the American Henley.

They will meet Syracuse, Princeton, Pennsylvania and the Naval Academy.

This will be the first time that the Nickalls brothers will measure blades in competition and it looks to me as if Guy Nickalls of Yale has it on Vivian Nickalls of Pennsylvania, in the second varsity eight race.

Yale's crew average 6 feet in height and 174 pounds, but they row a very lower stroke for a mile and one-sixteenth.

SAME CREW IN VARSITY RACE.

This same crew will been tered in the varsity race, and it's a question whether Pennsylvania will enter their first varsity owing to the absence of stroke Schumaker on account of illness. Coach Nickalls does not care to take a chances as he did last Saturday by putting in a new man No. 7 at the last hour.

Yale's second varsity for Saturday's race will be located in the following order: Bow, Cushman; No. 2, Meyer; No. 3, Denegre, captain; No. 4, Fitzpatrick; No. 5, Stillman; No. 6, Van der Ropp; No. 7, Sturtevant; Gilman, stroke; Moore, coxswain.

Yale's freshmen are working on entirely different lines. Their shoes are much farther away from the rowing line and they do not use as much slide and they row with very stiff backs.

Their reach is very short while they have a decided bevel on the blade of the oar at the catch, which is a terrible strain on the wrist and forearm, especially in a long race.

COUNTRY HOMES

For the Summer or the whole year are advertised for sale or to let in the Boston American today. No need to look further. Greatest Quantity-Quality Circulation.

ILLNESS FORCES REYNOLDS FROM HARVARD EIGHT

The progress of the Harvard varsity was further interrupted by the sudden illness of Captain Reynolds. He is the third varsity man to be forced to give up rowing on account of sickness.

The chances of the Crimson crew in the Cornell races are greatly diminished. Reynolds has a very severe cold and will be out for several days. His place was filled by Herman, who has been rowing at No. 5 in the "seconds" since Schultz's absence.

Curtis, who was rowing No. 3 on the varsity, was relegated to No. 7 in the "seconds," as Coach Wray feels that this boat needs a man who can take the stroke from Lund, especially for its race next Saturday at Philadelphia. Meyer, who has been rowing at No. 7, did not prove effective, and the speed of the eight was slowed up.

With Curtis back at No. 7 the "seconds" show a new lease of life. They were matched to race the Union Boat Club eight over the Henley distance, but owing to the unfavorable conditions the race was postponed. A shell's race upstream was substituted.

The "seconds" got away with a mullfini start and defeated their older rivals by three-quarters of a length. These two crews are entered in the same division in the American Henley at Philadelphia, and unless the Unions show better form their chances of victory will not be any too bright. These two crews will, however, row their race today over the Henley distance, and this will afford a better chance for comparison.

The order of the varsity is very unsettled. Just as the big eight was beginning to show improvement the element of misfortune entered and took away one of our best oars in Captain Reynolds. His services will be greatly missed, as he is considered one of the best bow men Harvard has ever had.

It is expected that by next Monday at least Captain Reynolds, Gardiner and Echall will all be back, which will give us time to get together before the Cornell race.

The workout was very unsatisfactory, due undoubtedly to the presence of two new men. Wilkinson, a varsity substitute, took Curtis' place at No. 3 in the first boat. With three substitutes in the boat, together with a newly changed order, the prospects of the Harvard crew are not any too cheerful.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

MR. BRANCH RICKEY, manager of the St. Louis Browns, will have to show us a little more than he showed us in the first game of the series to convince us that he has a rejuvenated ball club. The team he put in the field for the first clash looked very much like the team that has been coming out of St. Louis from both the American and National League camps for the past four or five years. There was observed the same old tendency to leave the ball where they ain't and the same old wildness and ineffectiveness on the part of the pitchers.

However, you never can tell in this National pastime. Today Mr. Branch Rickey's team may look like world-beaters. Certainly the St. Louis players have been turning out a better article of ball than they showed yesterday, else how could they have won so many. For a day or two last week they were in second place.

UNCLE BILL has made another shift in his batting order. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. The Red Sox made seven runs in five innings, so the shift must be O. K. "Uncle" Lingle has been sent down as for in the order of hitters as he can do, which is right ahead of the battery. Uncle Bill told him to bat his way to the front if he wanted to be up among the elect.

* * *

AS to that baseball problem Secretary Heydler of the National League was asked to decide the question as to which was promised for today:

The umpire was right in allowing the run to count, but wrong in saying the third out was at the plate. The third out was on the batter and it was not consummated until the ball had been thrown to first base. Here is Heydler's verdict on the play:

First—The umpire was in error in deciding the batsman the second man out. The batsman could not be declared out for running out of line, except in running the last half of the distance from home to first while the ball is being fielded to first; which was not the case in this play. The runner trying to score from second was the second out and the batsman the third out.

Second—Under rule 55 a run cannot score on or during a play in which the third man is put out before reaching first. In this instance it was not a case of the usual continuous double play, where the second runner is forced and the third retired at first, and on which no run can be scored. On the contrary it is evident there were two distinct and widely separated plays, and the run scored on a hit before the second man was retired at the plate. The score of the game should stand 1 to 0 in favor of Manual school, though this deduction is arrived at along a different line of ruling than that enforced by the umpire.

A batsman can never be declared out for not running." Here's what happened some years ago: One out; man on first, batter hits to short, and forces out results; batter, however, remains at first and is declared out for not running. He immediately raises point that if he is out for not running there could be no force play, and the umpire was compelled to reverse decision on man at second. Under present interpretation of rule this could not happen.

* * *

BY the way nine persons in ten still believe that a batsman is "out for not running." But he isn't as Mr. Heydler points out.

KILBANE PLANS TO BATTLE THE LIGHTWEIGHTS

By JACK CONWAY.

JOHNNY KILBANE, the Cleveland youth who tells us that he is the best little featherweight in captivity, has at last decided to fight the honorable members of the lightweight division. Kilbane has signed to meet Johnny Griffiths, the Akron, O., lightweight, in a ten-round contest to be staged at Canton, O., on July 4. The weight for the contest will be 133 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Kilbane is still hailed as the king of the featherweights, but it has been a long time since he entered a ring weighing 122 pounds. The Cleveland boy has fought the majority of his recent battles at 130 pounds. His opponent, however, has usually been obliged to make 122 pounds. Far be it from one of our esteemed ring champions to risk his precious title.

When Kilbane fought Jimmy Walsh at the Atlas A. A. he weighed at least 130 pounds, while Walsh scaled close to the featherweight limit.

NOW that Kilbane has announced his intention to fight lightweight it would not be a poor idea to match him with Matty Baldwin for a bout at the Atlas A. A. Baldwin is one of the few New England "lightweights" who is able to make 133 pounds. He would give the featherweight champion a great battle, as his aggressive tactics would enable him to break down the title holder's guard.

Johnny Dundee would make another good opponent for Kilbane. It is doubtful, however, whether Kilbane would agree to enter a ring with Dundee unless the latter agreed to make a low weight.

LEO FLYNN takes his faithful typewriter in hand and writes a lengthy letter informing us that Frankie Mack, Beachmont's popular box fighter, was not defeated by Walter Mohr at New Haven. Leo asserts that Mack outclassed Mohr and that he was given the decision by the New Haven newspapers. The New York boxing manager says that Mack is gunning for the lightweight championship of New England and that he is open to meet any 133-pound visitor who disputes his claim to the title.

TOMMY MURPHY, who was recently beaten by Willie Ritchie, considers the champion a wonderful fighter, but says that he takes too many chances for his own good. Murphy, of course, admits that Ritchie is a pretty classy boxer himself. Therefore it is only reasonable to suppose that the young man who is able to beat him is a remarkable performer. Tommy expressed himself thus:

"Willie Ritchie is too good a boxer for his own good. Maybe Gans combined the quality of being a clever boxer and a hard hitter better than Ritchie, but Willie has improved and if he gets over the habit of taking too many chances with hard-hitters he will develop into the greatest of all time.

"HE'S a great fighter; maybe too great for his own good. Willie is the champion and has a title to protect. He uses bad judgment, I think, in taking so many chances for something to earn. He gambles too much in the matter of exchanging punches. He will always be a hard hitter, though, and I do not think that a good judgment of a champion should not be credited if he just goes in a ring and hits and protects himself and gets away from the leading punches. But Willie does not work that way. He will sling when his opponent starts that style of mulling, and if the other fellow is not inclined in that direction he will start it himself."

Flynn to Battle Johnson at Arena

Though Sam Langford will be unable to appear, owing to a very sore foot, Hartford's main attraction next season will show before the members of the Atlas A. club in the old arena next Tuesday night, swapping blows with Porky Flynn in a twelve-round affair, the main bout of a four-bale tie show.

Three good preliminaries will round out the show. Though these preliminary matches have not yet been made, the club is telling the truth when it says some of the best lightweight talent in New England and before the card is finally settled it will arrange a really attractive as the main bout will be listed.

Harvard Wins at Tennis.

The Harvard tennis team made their second clean sweep of the year by defeating the University of Pittsburgh team six matches to none at Jarvis Field.

Between Rounds

By RINGSIDE.

THERE WILL PROBABLY NOT BE ANY boxing at the University Club as the bridge Friday night. Johnny Mallett of Chelsea was matched to box Young Nelson of Charlestown, but the latter is reported to be ineligible in getting any of the local gloco men to even think of handing the Chelsea boy.

IF NOW DEVELOPS THAT GALLANT is having trouble, see if Mallett can't help him. He would be unable to box if an opponent was matched for him, but he could give Gallant valuable advice. Mallett is a clever boxer himself, but, and to relate, the majority of them are not stars when viewed from a box office angle.

THE ATLAS A. A. RECEIVED ANOTHER setback Monday night, when Sam Langford, announced that the Tarrytown wonder was unable to appear on account of a sore foot. Langford was a great deal of a disappointment to the fans who were looking forward to seeing the Boston boy in action, but certainly do have their troubles keeping in perfect condition.

LANGFORD WILL TAKE THINGS EASY for at least two weeks, and then will start training for another bout with the Cambridge boxer, and this time he will probably be willing to entertain Jim Johnson.

MIKE GIBBONS WILL MEET JOHNNY "Kid" Alberts in a ten-round bout at Duluth Friday night. Alberts is a good performer, but he is not in the same class with Mike, and he need will have his troubles landing the St. Paul flash at last.

GIBBONS WILL GO THROUGH ALBERTS at least on points, and the chances are for a good deal. But even though Alberts loses he can honestly say that he would still rank along with the St. Paul scrapper.

JEFFRIES WILL PROBABLY MEET Jim Flynn before he returns to the old U. S. A. Flynn has had a great deal of success while living in the land of Australia, and the chances are that the fighter would like to meet his former boxer of Reno's ability.

PITTSBURGH CLUB MUST BE STOPPED SOON OR NATIONAL RACE IS OVER, SAYS COBB

Written for the Boston AMERICAN.

By TY COBB.

Somebody would better put the skids under that Pittsburgh club pretty soon or it will have the National League race broken up by the Fourth of July. The Pirates are playing the best ball they have shown since 1909, and unless McGraw's people begin to realize that there is real competition this year, Clarke will have his gang so far out in front that they will be hard to catch.

Pittsburgh just about now seems to be getting a combination of good pitching and hard batting, which is about as good a blend as anybody could ask for. There appears to be more speed on the bases and more ambition than formerly, also. What the club really needed more than anything else was some reliable hurling, and if the boxmen hold up to their present standard, Clarke will cause his rival managers a lot of worry.

Phillies Sensation of Season.

The showing of the crippled Phillies has been a great surprise to me. With two good pitchers and the shortstop and second baseman goobled up by the Federals, it didn't seem as though Doolin had an outside chance to be "up there," but his men are hustling, fighting and sticking around.

I am unable to account for the low position of the Boston Braves. This club looked like a winner at the start of the season, with a fellow like Stallings at the helm. George probably will get it going before long, and he certainly ought to finish ahead of several clubs that have been doing better work up to date. I have heard that he lost very strong behind the bat, but cannot say for certain that this is the reason he is losing games.

Loss of Johnny Evers Sad Blow to Cub Outfit.

Chicago isn't living up to expectations, either. On the Spring trip the Cubs looked like a fine ball club, so they told us in every town where they had preceded us. Losing Johnny Evers evidently hurt the O'Day outfit, though Johnny doesn't seem to have been able to help the Braves to any great extent.

Hering is doing good work with the rather inferior material he has at his command in Detroit. Hughie isn't afraid to shift his men around, and if one doesn't deliver the goods he has another in there mighty soon. He is jockeying with his line-up a good deal like "Connie Mack used along his pitching staff last season.

I suppose that all the "rookies" have been Big League ways by this time and are doing the noiseless soupspoon and cuddling act the award swallowing stunt that they may have brought from the "bushes." I wonder if any of the newcomers have adopted a trick used very effectively by a former National League player to avoid tipping the waiters in hotels when on the road.

This fellow was what you might call just a bit close with his change and he would do almost anything to save a dime. His favorite stunt was to tell the waiter at breakfast that luncheon that he would "see him tonight," meaning that he would give one tip at dinner for the whole day's meals. Many players go this to save the trouble of handing over money at every meal.

But this fellow always used to pick a fight against the waiter about the time he had finished his evening repast. He would order two or three kinds of dessert and then ask why something that he hadn't mentioned wasn't among the stuff under which the waiter came staggering in.

"Where is that char'otte ruese?" perhaps he would roar, not having even thought of eating such a dish or of ordering it.

"You didn't order any charlotte ruese, Mr. Blank," the waiter would reply meekly. "I'll get some right away."

"Don't tell me what I ordered," yelled back our hero. "I say that I ordered charlotte ruese and you haven't brought it to me. Just for forgetting it and for standing there arguing with me and trying to make me out a liar, you won't get any tip. Not a cent will I give to a guy who can't remember an order and give me some kind of service."

Some Players Artists at Saving Pennies.

Of course, he had to have a new waiter every day in order to work this stunt, and by the time the club had been around the circuit a couple of times everybody was on and the waiters would bring him absolutely everything on the bill of fare. This had him guessing for a time, but he finally conceived the brilliant idea of sending the "garcon" back after a second helping of something and then ducking out the door while he was in the kitchen. He certainly was one frugal guy.

There was another fellow who used to pick a quarrel with a Pullman porter just as the Club was reaching its destination. The invariable excuse for hopping on the darkey was a lost collar button. The athlete would set up a roar that he had lost his gold collar button and blame the porter for not finding it.

Of course, the porter couldn't locate something that didn't exist and the player would end up by saying: "Well, if you can't find things lost in your car, you don't get any tip from me. I believe you stole that collar button and I've a good mind to punch you in the nose."

By this time the poor porter was so thoroughly scared that he didn't think about any tips, but was glad to escape with his life. Fellows who traveled with this same for years say that he worked that gag a hundred times and always got away with it.

Jeannette Returns to U. S. from France

NEW YORK, May 13.—Joe Jeannette got back from France on the steamer Kroonprinsessin Cecilia with nothing but good words to say of the sportsmen in Paris. During his campaign abroad Jeannette has taken part in six fights and was successful in all but one. He is still looking for matches and is ready to meet anything against any heavyweight, not excluding Jack Johnson.

Joe expressed a very high opinion of the French pugilist Carpentier, who is matched to fight Gunboat Smith in London, nearly a month hence. Jeannette the Frenchman is not only a good boxer, but has a fine punch and is as game as they make them. Joe said that Carpentier would be sure to put up a good fight against Smith and a victory for the foreigner would not surprise him.

Glover-McDonald Bout Called Draw

HALIFAX, N. S., May 13.—The 15-round boxing bout between Johnny Glover of South Boston and Percy Donald of Glace Bay, C. B., was a draw, the referee giving the limit.

The contest was the result of a challenge from Glover after last week's bout, in which he was knocked out in the seventh round.

McDonald was much the heavier man and more aggressive than his opponent, fighting his hardest all the way, but Glover's splendid defence carried him through and was the admiration of the crowd.

Harvard Sportotypes.

The Harvard sophomores will race the Yale juniors in an eight-oared race on the Charles River on Saturday, immediately after the Harvard-Yale track meet has been settled.

The second crew and a custom four will leave Cambridge on Thursday for the Henley regatta at Philadelphia, which takes place next Saturday.

The tennis team will engage in three sets of contests this week. University of Pittsburgh will be met tomorrow, Cornell, Thursday, and Princeton, Saturday.

Bill Clark, former Boston National catcher and now with Brown's team at Providence, is proving doing a little scouting. Clark is based on the same ground as the Yale coach, and from the grand stand, as the Princeton baseball manager is on the field, performing and coaching from the bench. Clark thinks Brown of Georgetown one of the finest college pitchers.

Pitcher Bill Walsh of Fordham probably for the same brand of generosity for Umpire Brady that he called the Polo Grounds fans down for. Walsh pitched a no-hit game on Monday, the score of 2 to 1 in favor of the New Yorkers, and Brady—George Stallings for Walsh's Hitter. The customary four and one-half innings was played, but Brady refused to call the game. Walsh pitched without incrimination either team got a run. Fordhamites were probably entitled to their kick.

University of Pittsburgh failed to win one set in their singles and doubles tennis tournament against Harvard yesterday. Cornell plays the Cantabrigians tomorrow.

BUCKMASTER IS FINAL HOPE OF ENGLISH TEAM

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, May 13.—Consternation is a mild word to apply to the state of feeling at Wimborne House today when the following telegram was received from Major Hunter-Amory and J. W. Hubbell, were eliminated in the first round.

"Am terribly sorry, but the state of my wife's health makes it impossible for me to go to America. Please accept this as final."

At first Wimborne wished to give the telegram out to the newspapers as proof that it would be impossible for him to take a team over. Then friends advised him to try all means before doing so. Accordingly every reputable polo player able to play the position of back was wired or telephoned imploring them to join the team. Not a single favorable reply was received, some pleading short notice and others the impossibility of riding untried ponies. Others pointed out that the stigma of inferiority a defeat would rest on their shoulders.

From Captain Cheape, who is now staying in the country, no reply was received, but the AMERICAN on the strength of reports can state that he has failed to find a substitute and therefore he practically decided that he is unable to take a team, adding, moreover: "The great difficulty now is a question of ponies. Endless formalities must be gone through before shipping them. Then if at present moment a new buck appears it is doubtful whether he would be able to ship the ponies on Friday, as contemplated."

Later the AMERICAN correspondent found Walter Buckmaster and Mrs. Buckmaster dining at the Ritz with J. B. Miller and J. Chester Cowdin, the United States polo commissioners. When informed of Wimborne's decision and asked whether under these circumstances he would take a place on the English team Buckmaster replied:

"This is all news to me. Nobody is more surprised than I am."

Pressed whether he would take over a team, Buckmaster refused to answer or give any opinion on the situation.

Wimborne told the AMERICAN he was still without a buck. He said "I have no alternative but to regretfully report the position to the Hurlingham committee today."

Polo circles are inclined to the opinion that Buckmaster, in view of the circumstances, is likely to change his mind on a definite refusal from Hurlingham and take his side against America after all.

RECORD BROKEN FOR ENTRIES IN ENGLISH GOLF

By CHARLES (CHICK) EVANS.

Former Western Golf Champion.

SANDWICH, Eng., May 13.—Entries closed for the British amateur golf championship with a total of 230 players, the largest list of any previous year.

The remarkable thing about this record-breaking entry is that each player must be scratch or better. I should guess that scratch over here is equal to a handicap of three or better in the United States.

The British amateur championship has usually been played from Monday to Friday, but this large entry will probably necessitate beginning the tournament on Monday and the playing of the finals on Saturday. The draw takes place today and I have been courteously asked by officials to be present.

Upon this draw largely hinges the fate of golfers and its possible that a number of American players may be drawn against each other and under such circumstances the chances of the American players would of course be much lessened.

There is no doubt that the British amateur golf championship of 1915 will be the greatest golfing event ever known, and probably nothing like it will be seen again. It is really a world's championship for champions of all golfing countries are here side by side.

Now for the entries and their prospects. First of all comes Harold Hilton, for many times the British amateur champion and well known here to golfing in America. He is playing at the height of his game just now, and is the favorite of many for the championship honors.

Then comes Francis Ouimet, the United States open champion, well known and well liked everywhere. I have played with him considerably within the past few days and I think he is playing an excellent game—not up to his best, but good enough for this time of the season.

The American amateur champion, Jerome D. Travers, is highly esteemed by the British players, and his form has been especially brilliant for the last day or two. He is in excellent physical condition and bats I have heard of are 1 to 9 on him. Present conditions are all highly favorable to his style of game.

Following is a complete list of the American entries: Fraser Hale, Frederick Herreshoff, C. W. Inslee, Henry Topping, Devereux Emmet, Francis Ouimet, Harold Weber, A. G. Lockwood and myself.

Sales May Jump to Feds.

ST. LOUIS, May 13.—Although Pa Britton has raised Milm Sales's salary, the ole-time southpaw declines to promise that he will remain with the Feds for more than thirty days. At the end of the thirty days, he intimates, his alim legs are likely to hurdle him into the Federal League.

Stops Earl Fisher.

AKRON, O., May 13.—Johnny Griffo stopped Earl Fisher of Dayton in the sixth round of their scheduled 12-round battle here. One of Johnny's left hooks closed Fisher's right eye and another battered his nose in the sixth round. He tottered to his corner and his manager gave up the battle without a game for May 30, a. m., at his home grounds and would like to hear from 15-16-year-old teams. John J. RED SOX ANXIOUS TO DOWN BROWNS IN SECOND BATTLE

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

STALLINGS' CREW OPENS HARD SERIES AGAINST CINCINNATI TODAY

RAIN PUTS STOP TO SOX GAME WITH BROWNS

Owing to the nasty weather the second game of the series today between the Red Sox and St. Louis Browns was called off before 11 o'clock. There will be no doubleheader on this trip of the Browns, but the postponed game will be played when the club is here next trip—July 21, 22 and 23.

The Red Sox, shifted batting order and all, didn't do a great deal of hitting yesterday, but they didn't need to. Wild heaves and hurling eccentricities gave the Red Sox one of the easiest games they have put on the pins side this season. As George Foster turned in his second successive shutout, there was never any doubt of the battle.

The new Red Sox batting order, which has Hooper doing the leadoff stunt and Engle away down in the suck, looked like a good change, even though the Boston hitting was very light. It will be followed out today and in the future, unless the team shows no benefit. One thing was evident. The shift put some life into the outfit and if it holds good there are liable to give the Western hoots a very exciting reception in the course of the next few weeks.

It would not be at all surprising if Manager Carrigan shunted Janvrin onto first base and gave Engle a short rest. The utility star has not been doing a great deal of hitting of late, and the same medicine handed out to Scott and Gardner may be tried in his case. All admits, the batting of Janvrin, who covered third while Gardner was resting, would not be a bad asset for the team at present, as Childs Harold sure hammered the ball while he was given a chance in the regular lineup.

Ty Cobb Will Not Jump to Federals

NEW YORK, May 13.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the sensation outfielder of Detroit, declares he has never once entertained the idea of jumping to the Federal League.

"I am under contract to Detroit," said Ty, "and once my word is given I abide by it. No money could tempt me to break a contract. As a matter of fact, the Federal League is not trying to wean me away with any 75-thousand-a-year salary. Frederick Navin and I are very good friends. He has always treated me most fairly and I shall do the same by him. If I ever go to the Federal League it will be with clean hands and not after my present contract expires."

Police League Puts Opening Game Over

The inaugural game of the Massachusetts Police League, between the Metropolitan Park police team, champions of 1913 and 1915, and the Boston police department nine, were put over on account of the rain and will be played tomorrow forenoon at the National League park.

The team representing the Hub guardians of law and order is made up in the main of men attached to Stations 2, 7 and 13.

President John J. Donovan and the other officers of the league will attend the season opening.

Insects Against Insects

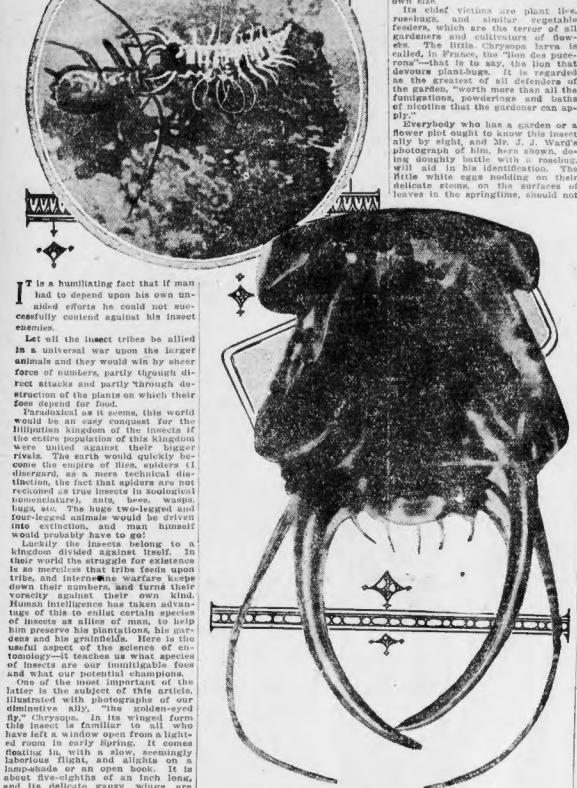
By GARRETT P. SERVISS

How the Empire of the Six-Legged Is Kept Down by Some of Its Own Subjects for the Benefit of Bigger Animals, Including Man

A Chrysopa larva attacking a rose bug



The head of a Chrysopa larva, showing its irresistible weapons

IT is a humiliating fact that if man had to depend upon his own unaided efforts he could not successfully contend against his insect enemies.

Let all the insect tribes be allied in a universal war upon the larger animals and they would win by sheer force of numbers, partly through direct attacks and partly through destruction of the plants on which their foes depend for food.

Paradoxical as it seems, this world would be an easy conquest for the Lilliputian kingdom of the insects if the entire population of this kingdom were united against their bigger rivals. The earth would quickly become the empire of flies, spiders (I disregard, as a mere technical distinction, the fact that spiders are not reckoned as true insects in zoological nomenclature), ants, bees, wasps, bugs, etc. The huge two-legged and four-legged animals would be driven into extinction, and man himself would probably have to go!

Luckily the insects belong to a kingdom divided against itself. In their world the struggle for existence is so merciless that tribe feeds upon tribe, and internecine warfare keeps down their numbers and turns their voracity against their own kind. Human intelligence has taken advantage of this to enlist certain species of insects as allies of man, to help him preserve his plantations, his gardens and his grainfields. Here is the useful aspect of the science of entomology—it teaches us what species of insects are our immitigable foes and what our potential champions.

One of the most important of the latter is the subject of this article, illustrated with photographs of our diminutive ally, "the golden-eyed fly," Chrysopa. In its winged form this insect is familiar to all who have left a window open from a lighted room in early Spring. It comes floating in, with a slow, seemingly laborious flight, and alights on a lamp-shade or an open book. It is about five-eighths of an inch long, and its delicate gauzy wings are beautifully iridescent in the lamplight. But what makes you look at it with growing admiration is the gem-like brilliance of its eyes. "Living Jewels" they truly are, glowing sometimes like little emeralds, sometimes like miniature rubies, and sometimes like pellets of polished gold. Beware of touching it, however, for it exhales a most disagreeable odor.

It is the larva of this fly that becomes a soldier in the service of man. Born from a minute oval egg, which its mother has left suspended at the summit of a fragile stalk glued to the under surface of a leaf, it begins operations almost as soon as it can crawl. As one of the photographs shows, its head is furnished with a pair of most formidable, incurved jaws, resembling a pair of sabres mounted scissors fashion. With these it unhesitatingly attacks, and makes very short work of, enemies twice its own size.

Its chief victims are plant lice, roseb ugs, and similar vegetable feeders, which are the terror of all gardeners and cultivators of flowers. The little Chrysopa larva is called, in France, the "lion des pucerons"—that is to say, the lion that devours plant-bugs. It is regarded as the greatest of all defenders of the garden, "worth more than all the fumigations, powderings and baths of nicotine that the gardener can apply."

Everybody who has a garden or a flower plot ought to know this insect ally by sight, and Mr. J. J. Ward's photograph of him, here shown, doing doughty battle with a roseb ug, will aid in his identification. The little white eggs nodding on their delicate stems, on the surfaces of leaves in the springtime, should not be disturbed, for every one of them will bring forth an insect champion to help keep the insect world under, and the kingdom of brains triumphant.

CHAPTER XII.

Daubrais Discovers Remi

REMI and Matteo finally arrived in London footsore and weary, and after a great deal of information on the part of sundry kindly passersby they reached the offices of Garth & Galley.

Mr. Garth was very busy in his private office when the office boy came in and said that two ragged, dirty little street urchins were outside waiting to see him.

"To see me?" he said, looking up from his work; "well, send them in, we'll have to look into this matter, or better still, I'll go out and see what they could possibly want."

In the outer room where the two children waited Mr. Garth very soon found out what was wanted. Remi told him in his clear, childish treble that some one had left word with Miss. Barberin, in Chevanon, that if he were to come up to London, Garth & Galley, the lawyers, would take him to his mother. "Will you take us to her right away?" said Remi eagerly.

Mr. Garth stroked his beard with a smile of comprehension, and, going into his private office he very shortly had Robert Daubrais on the telephone and was telling him the good news. When he rang off his entire person spoke satisfaction. This would mean a goodly sum of money for him and a few minutes later Daubrais arrived and was ushered into the private sanctum.

"The child is outside," said Mr. Garth; "he has a friend with him; they look like a pair of street gamins. Rolfe, send in the two children." And then, after a few words with the children, Daubrais dispatched a hasty letter to Moretti, saying that he would arrive shortly with the child.

"And now," said Mr. Garth, as Daubrais rose to go, "this gentleman will take you to your parents."

"Matteo, too!" said Remi, clinging to the shoulder of his little friend.

"Yes, I think your father won't mind looking out for him," said Daubrais kindly, thinking it better to humor Remi in this for fear of any complications that might arise. And in this way the three set off for the home of Moretti, the gangster.

Remi's homecoming was very different from what he had expected. The dark, evil face of his father, the fat, untidy woman who claimed to be his mother, his brothers who looked at him so strangely, the evil smelling hole where he and Matteo were to sleep, everything was disappointing and he clung to Matteo as though he, too, might be taken from him.

The Morettis were kind enough to the two boys, and although Remi was not happy, everything went along smoothly enough until he woke one night to overhear a conversation outside that convinced him very shortly that his father and mother were nothing but a gang of thieves. He woke Matteo and the two boys lay awake for a long time listening to the outlines of a plot for robbery, and shivering under their dirty covers. The next day Matteo came upon one of the Morelli boys trying to teach Fifi to steal. He flung himself upon the older boy with all the strength of his puny body, and only succeeded in being thrust down into an alphole for his pains with the promise that he should remain there until he knew how to behave toward his elders.

In the midst of the excitement Daubrais arrived to see Remi, and calling Moretti out into the alley, where they would not be likely to be heard, he explained to him the remainder of his plan. But Daubrais' wickedness was not to last forever, for at the sound of voices Matteo struggled up to the top of the airhole, and, quite unobserved by the two schemers, heard the entire conversation.

"And above all," Daubrais concluded in a low voice, "don't let Remi know his true identity. I want his mother, Madame Daubrais, to think he is dead, and I am going over to the Chateau de Duny to tell her as soon as I leave here." The head in the air hole disappeared. Matteo had heard all that was necessary.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT'S VULGAR

DEAR DEBSIE FAIRFAX:

Kindly advise me if it is proper for a girl, when speaking to a young man, to touch his stick pin, telling him it is pretty, and to slap him gently on the face in public. E. C. E.

ANY familiarity like this is extreme vulgarity; there is no excuse for it, and only harm comes from it.

IT IS NOT KIND.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Is it proper for a man who is married to keep pictures of other girls and tokens from them, and do you think that his wife should be vexed? ANXIOUS.

SUCH mementoes of past loves are a source of torment and should be destroyed. A man may prize such mementoes long after he has forgotten the girl who gave them, and in keeping them means nothing. Women are vexed at such things needlessly.

DECIDEDLY NO

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of twenty-two and I am in love with a girl two years my junior. Last night I proposed to her and she said she loved me and if I could get the consent of her father she would marry me. I am not on good terms with him. Do you advise me to elope, as she is willing?

M.

THE thing for you to do is to get on good terms with her father. Prove your worthiness to him, and an elopement will not be necessary.

MORE REASON FOR DEVOTION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping steady company with a girl for about four months. Recently her sister died. Would it be proper for me to continue, or should I quit for a while? P. G. K.

SHE needs her friends in her grief and loneliness as she needs them at no other time. You can be devoted without taking her to places of amusement.

I HOPE YOU NEVER WILL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young actor, whom I recently saw at a theatre. I want to know how I may meet him, as we have no mutual friends. LITTLE GIRL.

AS actors are much like Mormons in their love affairs, I hope you will never meet him. You call it "love." Believe me, my dear, it is only infatuation, and some day you will be ashamed of it.

A Leading Lady's Jewels

Copyrighted, 1914, by Harper's Bazar.

Miss Fannie Ward and Her Jewels

PEARLS and diamonds are Miss Ward's favorite jewels. Her collection includes some very rare and valuable stones, and some with very interesting histories. The collection as shown here does not include her remarkable diamond tiara or turquoise coronet, which she left in London, knowing that she would not wear them here. She has designed many of the settings for her jewels. Her rings are very unusual. Instead of the gold band she has circlets of tiny diamonds, set in platinum, in which the major jewel also is set. One of her rings has a large pendant pearl hanging from it, on a slender platinum chain. Another has an "Old Mine" diamond attached in the same way.

The tiny watch, crusted with diamonds, hanging from a pearl chain, was once the property of the late Empress of Austria. It was given to Miss Ward by the Archduke Ferdinand. The gold bag, set with diamonds and emeralds, was a wedding gift from Barney Barnato. The diamond serpent bracelet is her mascot. She never plays without it. Frequently it is the only bit of jewelry she wears. Necklaces are a passion with this piquant little actress. She has an almost barbaric love for chains of jewels. One of cabochon turquoises is set in diamonds, and another, entirely of diamonds, has a curious clasp, with a large ruby as the centre of the three stones. Of pearl necklaces, her jewel box holds half a dozen, which may be combined under a round diamond clasp, as the three are shown in this picture.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

ONE Sunday it was cold & rainy all day so we cudent go to church or anywere. I know Pa hated to stay in the house beekaus Ma's aunt was here visiting us & Pa told me the nite beefour that he & I wud go & talk a long walk so he wuddent have to be ware that old hen was. Pa doesnt like her beekaus she sed that no true man wud ever talk & drink of anything spiritus, but he had to stay in the house jest the same. He had a hedake all day Sunday, too, beekaus saturday like is one of his lodge nites.

This is a miserbul day, Pa sed after dinner. It is about as gloomy a day as I have seen in a long time. It makis me feel dee-pressed.

We shud nevver feel dee-pressed, sed Ma's aunt. I am as happy as a littel bird. I cudd sing a carol the liveiong day. It is vary wrong for one to let one's spirits sink, wen there is so much of the sub-lime & the butiful to live for. Be moar sunny, she sed to Pa. Let your hart thrill with the gladness of living, she sed, & let yure pulse beet with the sheer joy of existence. Whatever is is rite, she sed. Be a optimist, like me.

Oh, deer, sed Pa, I get vary tired of that optimist talk. I wish it wud seen raining so I cud go out.

Into each life sum rain must fall, sed Ma's aunt. Sum days must be mark & dreery. The way I always do, she sed, wen I think I am going to get blue, I think of the poor exiles in Rushia & the convicts in the salt fur mines of Siberry. I contrast my lot with thare dreery, hopeless lot & that makis me happy. Why deesnt you try that sistem? she asked Pa.

I deesnt know, I am sure, sed Pa. I suppose if a person has got to be shut indoors it seemt much worse in a sulfur mine than it is here. I wish it wud stop raining. & I wish my hed wud stop aking.

You ought to try suggestun for yure hed, sed Ma's aunt. Now I will hold my hands on yure hed & after a littel wile it wont ake at all. Then Ma's aunt calm cuver & set down by Pa & held his hed in her hands & kep saying Now the ake is going awa'. No it isent, sed Pa, that makis it worse. Deant bother about me, he sed. Oh, but I shall, sed Ma's aunt. In a few moments yure hed wont ake at all. Now deesnt it feel better. No, sed Pa, it feels worse. I wud rather you dident hold it. But she kep holding Pa's hed & after awhile Pa had to tell her his hed dident ake any moar so she wud let go of it & ston talking to him.

That is a grate thing, suggestun sed Ma's aunt. You can get a person to do almost anything or to feel almost any way by suggestun. Espeshully you can get them to do things for you.

How long are you going to stay here, sed Pa?

Oh, two or three weeks, I suppose, sed Ma's aunt.

I suppose you git lonesome to be back home sumtimes, deant you, Pa sed. Jest think how happy yure children will be to have you back home. Maybs sum of them has got a hed ake seven now & miss yure tender nursing, Pa sed.

Oh, what if they are sick and need me, sed Ma's aunt. Now that you bring that up, I am going heam in the morning. The little ones may need there mother.

After she had went to bed Pa sed Suggestun is a grate thing, a very grate thing.

A SCIENTIFIC WAY TO REMOVE UNSIGHTLY HAIR

Apply a few drops of El Rado, the liquid hair remover, on the growth; after washing off with a little plain water not a trace of it will remain. The ingredients in El Rado are used by many physicians for exactly the same purpose, which proves conclusively how perfectly harmless it is.

This wonderful preparation is the result of a long series of scientific experiments, and is proving a veritable godsend to women troubled with hair growths on lip, chin, cheek, neck or arms. Use a simple application of El Rado to saturate the hair; it is harmlessly dissolved, and in a few moments is gone, leaving the skin smooth, clear and velvety. The action of El Rado is absolutely safe, sure and thorough.

El Rado is coming to be regarded by society women as indispensable as face cream or toilet powder. You can obtain it at most drug or department stores, or direct from the proprietor, Mrs. El Rado, 1 Park Ave., New York. Illustration sent on request.—ADVERTISEMENT.

An Easy Way to Get Fat and Be Strong

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on digging their stomachs or stuffing it with greasy foods; rubbing on useless fatty creams, or following some foolish physical culture stunt, while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until your digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

That is a very valuable discovery, scientific discovery, it is now possible to combine into a simple form the very elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, red blood. This master-stroke of modern chemistry is called Sargol and has been called the greatest of flesh-builders. Sargol after three short weeks' use, gives reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines into daily soak up the fattening elements of your food and pass them into the blood, where they are carried to every nook, cranny, brain-cell and tissue of your body. You can readily picture the result when this amazing transformation takes place and soon notice how your cheeks fill out, hollows about your neck, shoulders and bust disappear and you put on from 10 to 30 pounds of solid, healthy flesh. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient. Your druggist has it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied, as per the guarantee found in every package.

Caution—While Sargol has given excellent results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles it should not be taken by those who do not wish to gain ten pounds or more.

STARS TO SHOW IN BENEFIT FOR GOLD FAMILY

Jane Cowl, Grace Freeman, Lewis Stone, Frank Sylvester—these are only a few of the theatrical stars who will appear at the Majestic Sunday night at the benefit for the family of Lewis Gold, crippled Boston newsboy who died a week ago after being accidentally shot by a woman in Haymarket square.

The benefit has been arranged by newsboy friends of Gold. "Happy" Rubinovitch headed the committee. President J. S. Connolly of the Press Club is chairman of the committee, James W. Gaddis is treasurer of the fund for the Gold family.

Jane Cowl, with the company of "Within the Law," will present a "take off" on the scene and of "Madame X." Grace Freeman, from "Phyllis," at the Cort, has an act of her own. Lewis Stone and Frank Sylvester, starring in the "Misleading Lady" at the Colonial, have planned a novel turn. There will be three acts from the Orpheum circuit, and three numbers from "Adele" at the Tremont. These are the attractions thus far secured. Others will be announced later.

Tickets are already on sale at the Majestic box office, where Manager Smith of the Majestic has signified his ably co-operating with the boys. The newsboys will take a hand in selling tickets during the last days of the week.

By J. C. KERRIGON.

The Vanderbilt Cup and the Grand Prize races will be held at San Francisco during the holding of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. When Frisco first started out to secure the races she only asked for one—the Vanderbilt—but the negotiations progressed it was deemed advisable on the part of all concerned to have both events run in conjunction with each other, as they have during the past four or five years. At a meeting of the various committees held in New York on Monday the sanction for both events was awarded to Frisco, with the understanding that the races will be held either in May or June of next year. The course to be used is a circuit of five miles. The Frisco people will immediately start the work of preparation for both these events, and it is their intention to make this the greatest racing carnival of the year.

Jules Goux and George Boillot, premier race drivers of the continental Europe, are now at Indianapolis preparing for the 500-mile race on May 30. Goux won the race a year ago and his experience then showed him conclusively that it would be impossible for him and his team-mate to spend a few weeks getting their machines in and thoroughly becoming conversant with the track. The other foreign drivers are expected to arrive at Indianapolis during the present week.

McReynolds Must Not Block Folk's New Haven Probe

Fourteen months ago Attorney-General McReynolds took charge of the Department of Justice. Among the matters he found ready to his hand and crying for swift action, was the case of the spoliation and wrecking of the New Haven Railroad system, by a number of prominent Wall Street men theretofore regarded as pillars of probity, masters of finance and true experts in the art of railroad management.

During their control of the New Haven corporations these men had systematically beggared the road to enrich private speculators. They bought tributary or competitive lines cheap for themselves and sold them dear to the New Haven for its stockholders. They used the credit of the New Haven to borrow millions which served to pay unearned dividends on the corporations they owned, selling the stock of the latter to the New Haven at prices fixed by the fictitious and fraudulent dividends. Their methods of robbery were so flagrant that not one of them dared to act as treasurer in some of their criminal deals, so they picked up a beardless boy in a country town and gave him $200 and a pleasure trip to New York for signing checks for millions, of the origin and destination of which he was utterly ignorant. Their criminal transactions were of such volume that they could not dispense with the keeping of books, but the books were so damning that they were secretly burned in the furnace of one of the robbers' residences, when the robbery was completed.

No ordinary, vulgar, spur-of-the-moment crime was this. The loot foots up into the millions. The operation took months for its successful completion. Every step was taken deliberately, shrewdly, and obviously under the direction of lawyers of the type skilled in advising how to evade the law. The criminals were, to the public, eminently respectable, rich and not obscurely connected with church and reform movements.

They stole millions and in their stealing murdered scores of passengers on a road left without means to instal safety devices, robbed 22,000 stockholders and reduced many of them to beggary.

This crime had been consummated and the facts concerning it were notorious when Attorney-General McReynolds assumed office. The criminals are still unpunished, even still unindicted.

The Senate of the United States, despairing of action by McReynolds, adopted by a practically unanimous vote a resolution calling upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to investigate and publish the facts concerning the wrecking of the New Haven. The investigation is now in progress. The general counsel for the commission, Joseph W. Folk, who has made a reputation as a capable and straightforward public official, has already dragged out enough facts of their rascality to damn the directors of the New Haven at the time in the court of public opinion. He has subpoenaed President Mellen and many of the directors of the road at the time of its looting, and proposes to put them on the grill.

Suddenly appears McReynolds, who has done nothing for fourteen months, and protests against Folk's doing anything now. Not content with apparently condoning New Haven robberies himself, he grows mightily indignant at Folk for presuming to expose them.

McReynolds' explanation of his course is that he fears that the looters, if forced to testify, may thereby gain immunity. This apprehension seems odd in him. He has granted them immunity so long that the Senate in impatience turned the job of exposing the rascals over to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Doubtless Governor Folk, who was a lawyer and investigator of national repute before President Wilson unearthed McReynolds from obscurity, will understand how to drag forth the essential facts of the crime without helping the criminals to escape.

In any event, no immunity could be greater than that which McReynolds has permitted the New Haven looters thus far to enjoy. The policy of delay and possible ultimate condonation which only public clamor prevented him from applying in the Briggs-Caminetti case, he has successfully enforced thus far in the New Haven case.

The Interstate Commerce Commission should not, and we believe will not, be influenced by McReynolds' effort to obstruct its proceedings. It need do nothing to make harder Howard Elliott's task of upbuilding the shattered road. It certainly must do nothing to enable the wreckers to escape punishment if this administration is ever strong enough to punish them. But it should continue to clear away the mesh of crooked financiering and corrupt corporation management by which the ugly fabric of swindling and robbery is concealed. It must pillory before the country the men who did the robbing.

And it will go ill with any official or any administration trying to obstruct that work now.

Which Was Discovered by Colonel Roosevelt, and Which Jealous Englishmen Accuse of Crossing Other Rivers and Flowing Up Hill.

I COME from haunts of chimpanzees,
I make a sudden sally,
And, forming round the rubber trees,
I thunder up a valley.

TO reach the mountain cresting snow
Is always my endeavor;
Some rivers seek the sea below,
But I flow up forever.

THOUGH other streams obstruct my course,
Aside I roughly toss them,
And, gathering fresh torrential force,
I wildly dash across them.

I RUMBLE up a mountain side,
And thrust the granite boulders
Before me as I gaily glide
About its lofty shoulders.

I HURL the glacier from its perch,
And to their highest spire
I make the Andes heel and lurch
As I climb ever higher.

THE parrots chatter as they fly
In fearful consternation
To see a river thus defy
The laws of gravitation.

BUT upward still I surge and flow
Until the clouds I sever.
Some rivers seek the sea below,
But I go up forever.

Not Exactly Loafers

The Great Lakes tugboatmen who are striking for twelve hours a day continuous work must cause Bill Haywood the utmost astonishment.

Consolation

Why should New Orleans keep kicking about not getting a regional bank? When the free sugar provision of the Wilson tariff goes into effect she won't need any banks at all.

Wireless Politics at Last

Luck in All Things

Can't you imagine old George Dewey, in the privacy of his home, patting himself on the back when he thinks what might have happened if Bryan had been Secretary of State in 1898?

Hardly

We have never seen any of the draped I. W. W.'s who looked as if they were mourning for vanished jobs.

Maybe He Never Thought of It

It is possible that Mr. Olney couldn't live on $12,000 a year, but he might have bought a Hansa and gone out with a tent show on bank holidays.

Letters from American Readers

VACCINATION: THE OTHER SIDE

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—It is my impression, after having been a daily reader of the AMERICAN since the first day of its issue, that it aims always to take a broad view of any important question, and to allow its readers to have both sides. One of the most important questions before the public today is vaccination, and especially the matter of compulsion. There is a widespread and rapidly spreading dread of this treatment, and it is high time that well-informed parents should be allowed to safeguard their children from what they regard as a dangerous procedure with no compensating benefit.

Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson, M. D., F. R. S. P., etc., was for many years chief of the London Charity Hospital, the largest institution of the kind in London. Here follows his final conclusion, after the most painstaking statistical study of smallpox and vaccination: "It is here the most overwhelming evidence against vaccination as tending in the least to prevent smallpox, but, we have set up the idol and the world has lent itself to the idolatry, because we, whom the people trusted, have set the example. But the world, nowadays, discovers idolatries on its own account, and if we continue the idolatry, it will simply take its own course, and, leaving us on our knees, will march on whilst we perish."

The late Professor Alfred Russell Wallace, honored the world over as one of the most eminent of scientists, wrote a pamphlet in 1885, containing the results of his most careful statistical research, entitled, "Forty-five Years of Registration Statistics Proving Vaccination to Be Both Useless and Dangerous." Thirteen years later he published a larger work entitled, "Vaccination a Delusion: Its Penal Enforcement a Crime." A few years before his death, Professor Wallace referred to this pamphlet as follows: "I feel sure that the time is not far distant when this pamphlet will be held to be one of the most important and most truly scientific of my works." Summing it up, his message is as follows: "That vaccination is a gigantic delusion; that it has never saved a single life; but that it has been the cause of so much disease, so many deaths, such a vast amount of utterly needless and altogether undeserved suffering, that it will be classed by the coming generations among the greatest errors of an ignorant and prejudiced age, and its penal enforcement the foulest blot upon the generally beneficent course of legislation during our century."

The history of Japan should alone suffice to settle this question for all time. Vaccination had been practiced in that country for thirty-nine years, the last twenty of which re-vaccination had been most rigidly enforced, until in 1908 she had the ugliest epidemic in her entire history, especially as to the case death-rate; there were 13,037 cases and 5,867 deaths, about every third patient dead. This gives absolute proof against vaccination as a preventive of smallpox, and certainly anything but evidence of lessening the severity of the disease.

In one epidemic at Leignitz, Germany, there were 224 well vaccinated persons down with smallpox before any unvaccinated one was attacked. This fact is taken from the Encyclopaedia Britannica, ninth edition, and no one has ever attempted to dispute it.

HOW TO WIN A WOMAN

A Few Suggestions That, Faithfully Followed, Can Be Guaranteed to Land a Man at the Altar

By DOROTHY DIX

A LOVELORN youth asks me to give him a few tips from the outside, as it were, about how to win a maiden's heart. Of course, there are no hard and fast do-this-and-you-can't-fail rules for capturing a young girl's fickle fancy, but here are a few suggestions that, faithfully followed, can be guaranteed to land a man at the altar.

Put ginger into your wooing. Go after a girl as if you meant to get her. There's something primitive in every woman that responds to the Cave Man style of courtship, and there isn't a woman living who secretly doesn't pine to be abducted and married against her wishes.

2—Be persistent. Never take "no" for an answer, because nine times out of ten the girl doesn't mean it. The man who sits down and camps on a maiden's doorstep almost invariably ends by getting her.

3—Never let a woman make a convenience out of you, somebody to fetch and carry, and take her to places where nobody else asks her to go. Humility is a virtue that cuts no ice with the female sex.

4—If you are jealous, hide it in your own heart. Jealousy shows that you are afraid of your rivals, and that you do not consider yourself as attractive as they are, and every woman takes a man at his own valuation.

5—If you are afraid of a girl, never let her find it out. Women will forgive every crime in the calendar except cowardice.

6—Don't be a fop, but dress as well as your means will permit. Not all of the virtues, of genius in the world will keep you from looking ridiculous to a girl, if your trouser legs are too short, and your coat sleeves too long, and your hair hangs over the back of your collar.

7—Show a girl that you know how to take care of yourself and of her. Don't let her have to be the pacemaker when you go out together.

8—Learn how to do things. If you don't know how to order a little dinner, subsidize some head waiter into teaching you. Practice on your mother and sister until you can help a woman to put on her wrap without tearing it to pieces and mussing her back hair.

9—Study a girl's tastes. It flatters a woman to death to think that you care enough for her to remember that she likes marshmallows instead of chocolates, and prefers violets to roses.

10—Be discreet in your gifts. Blow in your money on many little things that will be constant reminders of you, rather than one big article that will be put aside and forgotten.

11—Talk to a girl as if she were a creature of almost human intelligence. This is the subtlest known brand of flattery and goes to a woman's head because she is so unused to it.

12—Talk to her about herself. Affect a deep interest in her opinions. Ask her advice about really important matters. Play this line up strong.

13—Don't monologue about yourself, or your business. After a girl is engaged to you or married to you, she may want to hear all about your childhood and youth, and the state of the grocery trade, but it doesn't thrill her any in the beginning. It takes love to sugar-coat that pill.

14—Don't go too often to see a girl, or stay too late when you do. Many a man has killed a promising love affair by giving the girl an overdose of his society.

15—Never laugh at a girl, for girls have no sense of humor. Never argue with one before marriage. There's plenty of time for that afterwards. Never try to boss one, because the modern woman isn't looking for a master.

Finally, son, and in this is comprised the whole of the law and the prophets, just get on the blind side of the girl you want, and she'll do the rest, for women understand the art of courtship much better than men do.
